The following local businesses helped out by being hole sponsors, door prize sponsors or had a team that day, Citizen’s Telephone, Pork Chop 4-H Club, Campbell & Dye Insurance, Markle Bank, Gebhart’s Floral Barn, East of Chicago, Split End’s Hair and Nail Salon, PJ’s Flower and Gift Ware-Brandon Monuments. Your generosity and support was appreciated.

Sincerely, Kelly Jones

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

This letter is to express thanks and appreciation to the employees of the town service department for their assistance with the clean up project that took place at the Knight-Bergman Center on Sept 11.

A group of students from Riverview School arrived at the Center after lunch, to help do whatever we requested them to do. They washed windows, picked up litter and helped clean the basement. We hauled out three dump truck loads from this clean up.

We ask the town employees to help with the hauling of these loads and they were there the next day with their truck. They are always willing to lend a hand when they can.

We want to express our thanks to the employees of the town; our thanks to the students for their help and thanks for their supervising teacher, Mr. Abbott. This was a much appreciated community service.

Board members of KBC

OPEN LETTER TO THE EDITOR;

I am writing this letter as a member of the Board of Directors of the Knight- Bergman Center in Warren In. This letter is to express our thanks and appreciation to a fine group of young men and women from Riverview School. This group arrived the afternoon of Sept 11, to do whatever they could to help, in whatever tasks we gave them. There were approximately thirty -five boys and girls in the group. They washed windows, picked up litter on the grounds and helped clean the basement.

These young folks worked hard: they were very polite and not one time did any of them complain about what they were requested to do. They came to the center for about 2 hours and never quit until the bus came to pick them up to return to school. Thanks to the students and Mr. Abbott. You all did a great job.

Robert Pond — Member of Knight-Bergman Center Board

ANOTHER VIEWPOINT

Since I’ve been little (I’m 64 now) I was told not to bring up politics or religion at family gatherings. This has never been truer than today. Since I consider the Warren Weekly a family gathering, please try not to pass on this hysterical nonsense.

Misinformation like this is just pouring gasoline on an already burning fire. Just stick to the local news you do so well.

MY TOWN and Yours BY DENNIS STROUD

Samuel L. Good was born in Perry County, Ohio October 4, 1834. With his parents, Benjamin and Nancy Good and other family members, he came to Indiana in September 1847 and located in Warren. He worked on the farm until age 17 when he became a clerk in the general store of J.F. Good and Bros...

In 1860, with George H. Thompson Sr., he commenced the general merchandise business until 1865. He, also, shipped grain and live stock until 1884. In 1883, with George Thompson Jr. as proprietor partners, they opened the Exchange Bank. The bank was then located in the north half of its present location. Samuel's son, George S. Good, became manager of the bank. In 1887 the bank was moved one door south in a newly built building.

By 1895 the interest of George H. Thompson was acquired by George and his father, Samuel. On the death of Samuel, in 1899, the bank's ownership was changed to a partnership of George S. Good and his brother-in-laws, Lloyd S. Jones and John L. Priddy. In 1908, the banking room was extended and a badly needed new vault was added.

The three partners did a good job of building up the solid foundation established by the founder of the bank. By 1932, the institution had grown to be one of the most substantial in Indiana and was able to pass through the late strenuous days with unimpaired prestige. George S. Good was president until his death in 1931. Lloyd S. Jones took over for a short time until his death in 1932. In September 1932, Samuel P. Good succeeded as president of the Exchange Bank.

TRAPPING COURSE

A free trapper education course for all ages, youth through adult, will be offered by Salamonie Reservoir and the Indiana State Trappers Association (ISTA), Oct. 10-11, at the Upper Wabash Interpretive Center.

The program starts at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Oct. 10, with education on trapping issues, ethics and regulations. Lunch will be provided. After lunch, participants will set traps for furbearers on the trapline under the close supervision of the instructor. Traps will be left overnight and checked the next day.

Participants have the option of leaving late Saturday afternoon or camping Saturday night at the Lost Bridge West youth campground, near the Interpretive Center.

On Sunday at 9 a.m., participants will accompany trapping instructors to check traps and handle the fur of animals caught. After the traps are checked, furbearers caught will be used in skinning and fleshing demonstrations by ISTA instructors. Sunday's lunch also will be provided.

Attendees do not need a trapping license for this program. Entrance fees to the property will be waived for participants. The course is free but advance registration by Oct. 1 is required. To register, call (260) 468-2127.

Participants may want to bring waterproof boots or hip waders and will need to dress for the weather. Overnight camping at the youth campground is optional; however, participants must attend both day sessions to earn the DNR Trapper Education Certification.

MONEY PROBLEMS AREN'T NEW

by V Neil Wyrick
During the Revolutionary War my ancestors bartered everything from bullets to bread to animal skins to tobacco. It was called "country money." Since paper money wasn't worth a Continental they probably traded on the cow market as well. I'll give you my three pigs for your one cow. Barter works. The problem, of course, was that it was difficult to carry around a cow in your back pocket.

Whether the currency of exchange is bovine or an electronic Wall Street recessions have taken place and will continue to do so. Whether it is cash or crops most people are poor mathematicians and eventually too few bucks bring about bankruptcy.

It is doubtful there was a mortgage loan crisis in 3100 BC in Mesopotamia but since this was the beginning of writing and the keeping of accounts most likely some financial decisions were short on wisdom.

It was interesting to visit a bank in Babylon. Their first banks Babylon looked like temple and palaces because that is exactly what they were. The name of the first real recorded Banker was Pythius who operated in Greece and Asia Minor. The first banker who never made a banking error has yet to be found.

When another five hundred years had passed the Code of Hammurabi began to take charge. It was obvious that without some kind of laws governing banking operations a natural inclination toward greed would take over and whoever had deposited would soon find nothing left of their deposits. By 2550 BC Cappadocian rulers were starting to guarantee the weight and purity of silver ingots but still the equivalent of a dollar might vary. Despite the best attentions money has a built in variable.

A large portion of the population wasn't affected one way or the other because they had nothing to bank or barter with. They were slaves and when their compensation was doubled or even tripled they never noticed.

Money is whatever you say it is. By the year twelve hundred the larger the Cowrie shell collection the richer the collector. Indeed, the Chinese character for money originally represented a Cowrie shell. Money is whatever you say it is until one day "It isn't worth a continental."

By 687 BC the first crude coins were minted in Lydia, Asia Minor. This allowed the first retail shops to open. Commerce as we know it was on its way.

The history of war and money cannot be separated. Even the word "to pay" comes from the Latin word meaning "to pacify." Wars cost money and national war debts are ageless. An eighteenth century writer once wrote, "Nowadays that prince who can best find money to pay his army is surest of success." Out of such a truth arose the fact that if there isn't enough money to fight a war practice deficit spending and let future generations pick up the check.

In our own brief national history the Colonies in America were traditionally short of real coins. Indeed, our enthusiastic acceptance of paper money and its suppression by the British was a factor in provoking the American revolution. By 1740 England was giving a great big "No" to the colonies and their printing of paper money. In 1775 as the Revolutionary war began hyperinflation took over. Among the reasons; in North Carolina there were seventeen different forms of money declared as legal tender. Who said that reason is really even in complete control.

When the war finally came to an end a new era began; a war between debtors and creditors. In 1812, over twenty years after our beginnings we still didn't have a National Bank to exert a restraining hand on commercial banks. It was eighty years before we finally started to get our act together. Better late than never.

Now it is the 21st century and certain questions arise as they have always arisen. Are we in a recession or a depression? What investments are good or invitations to disaster? What is the next economic problem laying just around the corner? For years by barter and banter, by banks and Savings and loans or by money hidden under the mattress Americans have sought the better ways to manage money rather than be managed by it.

And the dollar? What is it worth? What could be bought in 1913 for $1.00 would today cost $21.78.

Experience to teach participants about hiking in Indiana.

"We hope to teach participants the details of hiking. We not only want to inform people about where to hike, but also, we hope to educate participants about equipment, preparation, social advantages, and leadership on the trail," said Ron Higdon, director of the Indianapolis Hiking Club.

Indiana is home to thousands of miles of established hiking trails, with more on the way. In 2007, Gov. Mitch Daniels outlined a plan to have a trail within 15 minutes of every Hoosier home by 2017.

"Hiking is the simplest and easiest way for people to enjoy the outdoors," said Dale Brier of the Division of Outdoor Recreation. "Indiana has trails that can suit almost any need or skill level. From short, shaded walks in the woods, miles of paved rail-trails, to rugged backcountry hikes, Indiana has it all. You'll even find yourself healthier and happier at the end of the day."

The Hoosier Outdoor Experience is a family-friendly event that is the first of its kind in Indiana. Unlike traditional trade shows, visitors will be able to enjoy hands-on experiences in a wide range of outdoor activities, such as fly fishing, target shooting, archery, kayaking, mountain biking, hiking, rock climbing, camping and much more.

The Hoosier Outdoor Experience is presented by the Department of Natural Resources and the Indiana Natural Resources Foundation, with sponsorship support from the Nina Mason Pulliam Charitable Trust, Ball Brothers Foundation, WXIN-Fox 59, Indianapolis, and numerous other sponsors.

Parking, admission, activities, demonstrations and seminars are free to the public, but online registration is required. To register, go to hoosieroutdoorexperience.IN.gov and click on the yellow registration icon.

BECOME AN ARCHER

Hit the bullseye by participating in the Hoosier Outdoor Experience, Sept. 26-27.

Archery is for more than hunting. In fact, archery is an Olympic sport that is practiced and enjoyed across the world. Many archers hunt; many others never shoot anything but targets.

Volunteers from the Indiana Bowhunter Association, as well as DNR employees, will teach participants the basics of field archery at the Hoosier Outdoor Experience. Participants will have the opportunity to shoot a compound bow under the guidance of an experienced archer.

"The Indiana Bowhunter Association is extremely excited to be part of the Hoosier Outdoor Experience. New shooters secure the future of our sport, and this event will allow us to reach a large audience of potential archers," said Tim Labbe, president of the IBA.

Many hunters enjoy pursuing game with archery equipment over hunting with firearms.

"Hunting with archery equipment is about honing skill and challenging yourself. It makes the reward that much sweeter," said Mark Reiter, DNR public lands program manager and an avid bow hunter.

DON'T PAY FOR HELP

With foreclosure filings reportedly reaching record numbers this summer, Community Connections, the Housing Division of Pathfinder Services, Inc. reminds homeowners in danger of foreclosure that they should never pay for help, and should instead seek assistance from HUD-approved nonprofit housing counseling agencies, like Community Connections, and those found at www.findaforeclosurecounselor.org and www.makingahomeaffordable.gov.

"Rescue scams are proliferating at a rapid pace and more homeowners are falling prey to the slick advertising and sales pitches that guarantee to keep them in their homes," said Jan Baumgartner, Director of Community Connections, the Housing division of Pathfinder Services, Inc., a local NeighborWorks organization with its main office in Huntington.

"Some challenges borrowers are facing in the communities we serve includes job loss due to the current economic situation. Additionally, we are receiving many referrals daily of families who have no where else to turn, and are still seeing some families who have fallen victim to paying for foreclosure counseling," Baumgartner added.

Foreclosure rescue scam artists frequently demand upfront payment for their services and "guarantee" to modify, refinance, or reinstate a borrower's mortgage. The payment demanded can be anywhere from $1,000-$5,000, as was the case for one homeowner in Indiana. A local homeowner paid a California agency $1,500 to stop a foreclosure sale. They believed the promise that this agency was helping, when they were not.

By the time the homeowner contacted Community Connections it was too late and the home was lost. That does not mean all homeowners who have fallen into this trap cannot be saved, but homeowners should contact Community Connections now to be sure they are receiving quality assistance.

"If you are facing foreclosure, do not pay any person or company up front for services," said Baumgartner. "Homeowners facing foreclosure need to be aware that foreclosure rescue scam artists are out in full force and see this as a prime opportunity to make money. When it comes to foreclosure assistance, the old adage 'you get what you pay for' does not apply. If you are facing foreclosure, contact a HUD-approved nonprofit housing counseling agency, like Community Connections, to receive foreclosure counseling. Nonprofit organizations are a homeowner's best defense against foreclosure."

Community Connections urges homeowners not to pay a person or company for foreclosure help, and offers borrowers the following tips to avoid foreclosure rescue scams:

- * Never use any ad, person, or company that approaches you and claims to be able to "stop foreclosure now" for a fee.
- * Never release your financial information online or over the phone to a company you know nothing about. Do a background check first to verify they are legitimate first call the Better Business Bureau or search for complaints on line.
- * Never send your mortgage payment, or any payment, to a company other than your mortgage lender.

Visit www.findaforeclosurecounselor.org to find HUD-approved organizations that offer free, legitimate foreclosure counseling.

If you prefer to speak to a counselor over the phone, call the Homeowner's HOPE Hotline at 888-995-HOPE (4673) for free foreclosure prevention counseling by expert counselors at HUD-approved nonprofit counseling agencies. The hotline is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week, in English and in Spanish. Counseling is also available in 20 additional languages by request.

Contact your mortgage lender. Contrary to what a foreclosure scammer will tell you, you should contact your lender the minute you have trouble making your monthly payment.

If you suspect a scammer has approached you or victimized you, contact your local Better Business Bureau or state attorney general's office. In addition to reporting a scam locally, you can file a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission (FTC). To file a complaint in English or Spanish, visit the FTC's online Complaint Assistant: <https://www.ftccomplaintassistant.gov/> or call 877-FTC-HELP (877-382-4357).

TOOTH TIPS

By: Dr. Kevin J DeaKyne DDS, PC
 WHAT IS AN ABSCESSSED TOOTH?

An abscessed tooth refers to an infection caused pocket of pus in the tissue next to a tooth.

Abscessed teeth are caused when the pulp of the tooth dies as a result of damage or decay. Bacteria grows in the dead tissue and spreads from the root of the tooth to the tissue underneath, causing a pus filled pocket known as an abscess.

Another cause is when gum disease (gingivitis or periodontitis) causes the gums to pull away from the teeth creating "pockets". If one of these pockets becomes blocked, bacteria can grow and an abscess may form.

As the infection spreads, the bone in your jaw may begin to regress to make more room for the swelling of the infected area. If too much bone dissolves, there will be no support for the teeth and it becomes loose and it may have to be extracted. There may be pain or no pain with the abscess.

SYMPTOMS: Moderate to severe pain to pressure on your teeth; bad taste in mouth; swollen or red gums; swelling; fever; hot sensitivity; night pain

TREATMENTS: Antibiotics; Pain Medications; Root Canal; Extraction.
