KBC THANKS

I want to thank the community for the great turnout at our luncheon this past Sunday.

It was so great that we ran out of food with 20 or 30 minutes to go.

The profit will be used for fixing up the playground with a play boat and a pavilion and working on other playground fixtures.

Thanks again

STRAW MAZES AND LITTLE GIRLS

by Daris Howard

My older children were all going to the straw maze, and my littlest daughters were feeling left out.

"Why can't we go with you?" my youngest daughter asked.

"Because we will be with our friends," her older sister said. "Besides, we like to go after dark when they have monsters in the maze, and they are too scary for you. They chase after you and try to catch you and everything."

She then went on to expound about how horrible the monsters were until she had her little sister convinced that they were real, and that it was all a person could do to stay away from them.

"Then why do you go?" my littlest asked.

"Because, trying to evade the monsters is half of the fun."

"So, you can take us with you and you can help us stay away from them!"

That was when my older children appealed to me to help the little ones understand that they couldn't tag along.

When I informed my youngest daughters that they would not be able to go with their older siblings, I saw the tears in my littlest daughter's eyes, and I decided that I needed to do something about it. I told my two youngest that I would take them in the early evening, before dark, when there weren't any monsters. I even told them I would allow them to take some friends.

That's how I found myself at the maze with a group of little girls. They started out with great enthusiasm, quickly checking out each path, but after a few hours of being lost, they were getting tired. I

CHRISTMAS BAZAAR

Warren United Church of Christ (202 East Second Street) is having their annual Christmas Bazaar "Pumpkins to Snowmen" on Saturday, November 7th. Doors open at 9am! Lunch will be served from 11-1pm. Bazaar sales will continue until 2 pm including craft items, homemade noodles, apple dumplings, & deli and bakery items. Hope to see you there!

Dr JB Bennett grew up in Warren and after graduating from the local high school he enrolled in the Indiana University School of Medicine in Indianapolis. One of his classmates there was Otis Bowen who later became governor of Indiana.

In 1942, Dr Bennett graduated and took his internship at Chicago Wesley Memorial Hospital, from 1942-1943, and then spent three years as a physician in the United States Air Force. After discharge from the service, Dr Bennett decided to stop off in his hometown Warren before going on to Chicago where he hoped to begin his practice. It was only going to be a short stay, then on to Chicago, but the short stay turned into a life time.

The hometown, the people and the Indiana environment changed his mind. He decided to stay. At first he practiced medicine in his home. In 1962, he moved his office to the Memorial Medical Building across from the Warren Methodist Home. Dr Bennett was past president of the Huntington County Medical Association and the Kiwanis club. He was a life member of the American Academy of Family Practice. In 1968 he went to Vietnam for three months, as a volunteer physician and was presented a certificate of humanitarian service from the Republic of Vietnam. In 1968 he also received the Sagamore of the Wabash Award and in 1995 he was presented our own Samuel Jones Award.

Dr Bennett's practice spanned over 50 years and it covered all areas of a family practice doctor. Though he didn't deliver babies his last 20 years or more, he estimated that he delivered over 2000 during his first 30 years of practice. In the forties it wasn't unusual to make house calls. It still wasn't unusual for Dr Bennett to make house calls when the need arose in his later years. He said once "He was one of a few of a dying breed."

As a hometown physician of 50 plus years, Dr Bennett felt he was in a position unusual to many doctors. From delivering babies, through treatment of childhood and adult diseases, he felt he had become a part of his community. It was like becoming a member of all the families that he had treated.

VB COUNCIL

Preceding the October 21 meeting of the Van Buren Town Council a Public Hearing was held at 6:30 p.m. for the budget adoption. No citizens were in attendance for the hearing.

At 7 p.m. President Marvin Surber called the Council meeting to order. The meeting was held in the Council Room at Town Hall. All in attendance repeated the Pledge to the American Flag.

A number of citizens were in attendance for the Council meeting.

A citizen brought pictures showing trash at the park.

There were concerns about checking the area.

There were questions as to whether owners were sighted for properties and whether they will be taken to court. One person tore a house down and another had put up a privacy fence.

Citizens were concerned about persons loitering in the area of the Library.

Council signed a lease agreement between the Town and Switch-Up. They also signed a new grant agreement for the new fire station.

In the police report, two properties had been cited, and more are to be cited soon.

All officers are expected to be on duty Halloween night.

Donnie Plummer reported all meters had been read in October. Plans are to fix a leak at Turtle Dove trailer park.

A pick-up truck is to be purchased to replace the dump truck and snow plow. Two quotes had been submitted; Southworth $38,100 and Fincannon Ford $31,400.

The next Council meeting will be November 4.

HALLOWEEN FIRE SAFETY

With Halloween just around the corner, children will soon be out in costume trekking through festive displays in search of candy. However, more than ghosts could be lurking amongst the mid-fall fun, as Halloween costumes and decorations present a number of hidden fire hazards. Fortunately, by following some simple safety precautions from the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA), you can ensure a day of safe fun for your family and trick-or-treaters.

"Halloween has become such a festive time of year and we want people to enjoy decorating their homes, wearing colorful costumes and getting in the fall spirit," said Lorraine Carli, NFPA's vice president of Outreach and Advocacy, "but this holiday can quickly turn hazardous if proper precautions aren't taken." According to Carli, fire risks include candle decorations and billowing costumes with long-trailing fabric.

NFPA's most recent statistics show that decorations were the first item to be ignited in an average of 860 reported home structure fires per year from 2009-2013, causing an estimated average of one civilian death, 41 civilian injuries and $13.4 million in direct property damage. Nearly half of all decoration fires in homes are the result of decorations being too close to a heat source. Thirty-eight percent were started by candles and one-sixth began in the living room, family room or den.

Visit the Sparky the Fire Dog® website to find tip sheets, kids' activities, a pumpkin-carving template and more. Parents and teachers can also utilize NFPA's simple Halloween fire safety tip graphic.

In a safety video, NFPA's Lisa Braxton says planning ahead can help make Halloween fire-safe. Taking simple precautions, like making sure costumes and decorations are flame-resistant, can make the difference between a safe and tragic holiday.

Improve the safety of your Halloween by following these tips from NFPA:

* Costumes: When choosing a costume, stay away from billowing or long-trailing fabric. If you are making your own costume, choose material that won't easily ignite if it comes into contact with heat or flame.

* Visibility: Provide children with flashlights to carry for lighting or glow sticks as part of their costumes. If your child is wearing a mask, make sure the eye holes are large enough so he/she can see clearly out of it.

* Flammable decorations: Dried flowers, cornstalks and crepe paper are highly flammable. Keep these and other decorations well away from all open flames and heat sources, including light bulbs and heaters.

HINTON IS A HUSKER!

Chilly temperatures and some light frost didn't stop Indiana corn huskers from meeting in West Lafayette last Saturday for the Indiana State Hand Corn Husking Contest, located within the Prophetstown State Park.

Participants in the event husked corn for 20 minutes as they went down a row tossing the husked ears into a horse-drawn wagon. After their allotted time was finished, the corn was weighed and checked for remaining husks.

Placing first in the men's open division was Atlee Lambright of Topeka. He husked corn for 20 minutes resulting in 206.62 pounds. Don Williams of Middlebury placed second with a total of 165.23 pounds of husked corn. There were only two contestants in the men's open division.

In the women's open division, Barbara Amiss of North Manchester was the only contestant. She husked a total of 95.74 pounds of corn in 20 minutes.

Six individuals participated in the young men's corn husking division. Dennis Brown of Winchester finished at the top with 205.65 pounds. West Lafayette's Jeremy Kane placed second with a total of 189.62 pounds of husked corn in 20 minutes. Placing third in the division was Indianapolis' A. J. Smith, who husked 172.46 pounds of corn. Andy Shafer of Henderson, Michigan qualified to husk in the national competition with 149.91 pounds of husked corn.

The single contestant in the young women's division was Mary Hollett of Plymouth. She husked 71.20 pounds of corn in 20 minutes.

* Candles/jack-o-lanterns: It is safest to use a glow stick or battery-operated candle in a jack-o-lantern. If you use a real candle, use extreme caution. When lighting candles inside jack-o-lanterns, use long fireplace-style matches or a utility lighter. If you choose to use candle decorations, make sure to keep them well attended at all times. Do not leave them near flammable objects or where trick-or-treaters may walk. Remind your children to avoid open flames. Make sure children are watched at all times when candles are lit. Exits: Remember to keep exits clear of decorations, so nothing blocks escape routes.

CYBERSECURITY TIPS

iAB Financial Bank, in conjunction with the American Bankers Association (ABA), is providing tips to area businesses on how they can protect their accounts from corporate account takeover, a type of fraud where thieves gain access to a business' finances to make unauthorized transactions. Some of these fraudulent transactions include transferring funds from the company, creating and adding new fake employees to payroll and stealing sensitive customer information that may not be recoverable.

iAB and the ABA suggest the following tips to keep your small business safe:

- * Educate your employees. You and your employees are the first line of defense against corporate account takeover. A strong security program paired with employee education about the warning signs, safe practices, and responses to a suspected takeover are essential to protecting your company and customers.

- * Protect your online environment. It is important to protect your cyber environment just as you would your cash and physical location. Do not use unprotected internet connections. Encrypt sensitive data and keep updated virus protections on your computer. Use complex passwords and change them periodically.

- * Partner with your bank to prevent unauthorized transactions. Talk to your banker about programs that safeguard you from unauthorized transactions. Some services offered may include call backs, device authentication, multi-person approval processes and batch limits to help protect you from fraud.

- * Pay attention to suspicious activity and react quickly. Look out for unexplained account or network activity, pop ups, and suspicious emails. If detected, immediately contact your financial institution, stop all online activity and remove any systems that may have been compromised. Keep records of what happened.

- * Understand your responsibilities and liabilities. The account agreement with your bank will detail what commercially reasonable security measures are required in your business. It is critical that you understand and implement the security safeguards in the agreement. If you don't, you could be liable for losses resulting from a takeover. Talk to your banker if you have any questions about your responsibilities.

"iAB makes great efforts to work shoulder to shoulder with our business customers, whether it's by helping them find the resources to efficiently run their operation or by providing helpful tips like these to keep in mind as they conduct day-to-day operations," said Thom Obergfell, iAB Senior Vice President and Commercial Banking Manager. "We are fully invested in helping our business customers remain safe and secure so they can succeed in reaching their goals."

iAB Financial Bank, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Independent Alliance Banks, Inc., is one of the largest locally-owned community banks in the area and employs approximately 290 people throughout Allen, Huntington, Marshall and Wells counties.

These helpful tips provided to you in partnership with the American Bankers Association and iAB Financial Bank.

MEDICINE ABUSE

Prescription medications taken by the person to whom they were prescribed, at the right dose, at the right time and in the right way, are incredibly valuable. However, the most common drugs teens abuse after marijuana are prescription medications. The misuse or "nonmedical use" of these drugs is dangerous and can lead to overdose, addiction and death.

Teens report getting many of these medicines from home medicine cabinets and mistakenly believe that abusing them is "safer" than other drugs. According to surveys from the National Institute on Drug Abuse, 20 percent of teens say they have taken a prescription drug without having a prescription for it themselves, and 5 percent report abusing Over the Counter (OTC) cough medicine to get high.

The most commonly abused prescription medications are:

1. Opioids and pain relievers: hydrocodone (Vicodin), oxycodone, (OxyContin);
2. Barbiturates and benzodiazepines: diazepam (Valium), alprazolam (Xanax); and
3. Stimulants: dextroamphetamine (Dexedrine or Adderall), methylphenidate (Ritalin or Concerta).

The increased abuse of prescription medications is a cause for concern.

- * According to the National Center for Injury Prevention and Control (NCIPC), nationally, sales of prescription painkillers per capita have quadrupled since 1999, and the number of fatal poisonings due to prescription painkillers has also quadrupled. Enough prescription painkillers were prescribed in 2010 to medicate every American adult continually for a month.

- * Every day, 2,000 teens abuse a prescription drug for the first time.

While millions of Americans safely rely on OTC cough medicine to temporarily relieve their cough, some teens intentionally take large amounts – sometimes more than 25 times the recommended dose of these medicines – to get high. This means some teens ingest multiple packages or bottles of OTC cough medicines that contain dextromethorphan (DXM). DXM is the active ingredient in more than 100 OTC cough medicines. When taken in excessive amounts, DXM can cause serious side effects including rapid heartbeat, high blood pressure, memory problems, nausea and vomiting.

Kids learn by example, so when they see mom, dad, a sibling or a grandparent taking a pill, it doesn't seem so bad. If you take medications in front of young children or teens, explain why and stress the fact that these are powerful medications that are only safe to use by the person for whom the medicine was prescribed.

Medication abuse statistically rises with age, so the earlier we educate children and young people about the realities and dangers of prescription drug abuse, the better our chances of preventing them from starting to abuse prescription medications in the first place.

Teens listen, even if they act like they don't. In fact, teens who learn about the risks of drugs from their parents are 50 percent less likely to use drugs.

If you only provide them with one fact, let them know that "everyone is NOT doing it." It is also important to safeguard your medications. Know what you have and how much, so you will know if anything is missing.

The 2016 National Contest will be held in southeastern Minnesota on the farm of Jeff & Kathy Ofstie, just east of Goodhue. This farm plants twin rows. The challenge for huskers will be to pick both rows.

The Indiana State Corn Huskers Association is made up of farmers, self employed businessmen and women, people involved in the agricultural industry, and those who merely honor the memory of those who have gone before us. We love the fun of competing, visiting with friends, make new friends, and for some the joy of winning a good competition.

ANGER

by V Neil Wyrick

A four-year-old and a six-year-old presented their mom with a houseplant.

They had used their own money to buy it and she was thrilled. The older of them said with a sad face, "There was a bouquet at the flower shop that we wanted to give you.

It was real pretty but it was too expensive. It had a ribbon on it that said 'Rest In Peace,' and we thought it would be just perfect since you are always asking for a little peace."

Are you always spoiling for a good fight? Is the last thing you give people when you are around is peace?

In any committee meeting of which you are a part or a discussion on a street corner or family gathering do you wear a frown like a badge of honor?

When your name comes up in a conversation does everyone agree that you major in saying the wrong thing at the wrong time in the wrong place?

Do you wear a chip on your shoulder as a fashion statement?

I hope this does not describe an "always you" but unfortunately it does describe many folk at least some of the time.

And whenever we can find nothing better to do but be argumentative we need to work harder at getting control.

Hear this and don't forget it, anger is a legitimate emotion until we lose control and go crazy.

Are you one of those people who say "But I can't control my anger." Really? Do you control it when talking with your boss? You don't want to get fired! Then I guess you can control it...wouldn't you say?

You've started an argument with your wife, husband or child and the front door bell rings. You answer the front door and you are the epitome of patience. Then I guess you can control your patience...wouldn't you say?

Yes, anger can be controlled...you just have to give yourself good enough reasons to at least get angry less and less.

kept trading off which one I carried on my back, and I, too, was wearing out. In addition, it was getting cold, and I had loaned one of them my coat. To make matters worse, the dark was coming quickly, and I knew that the monsters would be there soon.

The monsters were just college students paid to dress up, but they were far too scary for my small children, especially since they could have nightmares after watching the fire scene from Bambi.

I finally hit on a plan to find our way through. We would try a route, and when it would dead end, we would come back to the opening of it and I would put a mark in the dirt near the edge. I scuffed up the dirt with my shoe in such a way that no one would really know it was there unless they were looking for it. In this way I planned to narrow down our paths until we found the one that would take us through.

As we continued on, we began to crisscross paths with another father that had a large entourage of children. He, too, seemed weary and ready to put this adventure behind him. We would hail each other as we passed.

Even with my brilliant strategy, the number of paths didn't seem to be decreasing, and my little group was getting cold and grouchy. After another hour, we resigned ourselves to the fact that we would be taking up permanent residence in there, and we plopped down on some small straw bales to rest. Just then, the other father came up with his group and sat down beside us.

He told me he thought he had figured a method to find his way out, but it hadn't helped. He said "I noticed by each doorway that there was a mark on the edge, probably made by the tractor setting the bales. So each time we found a dead end, I erased that mark."

Then, to show us what he meant, he erased the mark I had just put by the opening on the path next to us. It was then that I realized that we had been working against each other the whole time.

If we hadn't figured that out, I think we would still be in there.
