$1 MILLION GIFTED

Huntington University announced it has received a $1 million gift from Leland E. Boren of Upland, Indiana. The gift will support continued academic program growth in the Haupt Institute for Agricultural Studies and other initiatives described in Faith Forward 2022, HU's strategic plan.

"A gift of this magnitude enables Huntington University to remain strong as an institution focused on educating and equipping men and women to make an impact in this world for Christ," stated Dr. Sherilyn Emberton, HU President. "Mr. Boren's faithfulness to support Christian higher education reflects his long-held personal values, and continues the legacy he and his wife began many years ago of investing it forward in the lives of young people and our community."

Boren currently serves as Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Avis Industrial Corporation, a parent company of 11 wholly-owned subsidiaries located in the United States, Mexico, Canada, and United Kingdom. He is also president of PHD, Inc., with manufacturing operations in both Fort Wayne

LEARNING TO LISTEN TO THE SILENCE

from the American Counseling Association

Most of us have surely noticed that today's world is a pretty noisy place. From electronic gadgets, to the sounds of traffic, to just listening to the chatter of family, friends and co-workers, much of our day is probably filled with a great deal of sound.

This noise may seem a condition of modern life, but studies have found that purposely adding a little silence to our days may bring a number of benefits.

Adding some quiet can provide not just mental health benefits, but physiological ones as well. Turning off at least some of the noise has been shown to lower blood pressure, boost the body's immune system and possibly even improve brain function. A recent article cited a 2013 study that found that two hours of silence helped create new brain cells in the areas linked to remembering, emotions and learning.

While most of us might find it hard to find two hours of silence, even two minutes of quiet time was found to relieve tension through positive changes in blood pressure and circulation in the brain.

Being surrounded by non-stop noise often results in feeling tense and uncomfortable, and might lead to a headache. Numerous studies have documented the harmful effects that noise pollution can have on our health and ability to think and concentrate.

Finding more quiet in your day doesn't mean going to extremes or needing some totally silent environment. It simply requires making a conscious effort to escape from the everyday noise of your life for at least a short period, what professional counselors call mindfulness.

One suggestion is simply to get outdoors and enjoy a quiet walk with no specific purpose except to relax. Yes, there will still be sounds around you, but as you focus on yourself and your walk, they no longer become a primary distraction. Leave your headphones home, too. And if you walk with a companion, just agree to make it a silent journey.

Deep breathing exercises or quite mediation can also add periods of quiet to your life. Numerous online sites offer instructions for either activity. Or, just find a quiet corner in your home and settle in with a good book for a half hour.

None of us is ever going to live in a perfectly silent world, but finding a way of quieting at least some of the noise can offer real physical and psychological benefits.

GARDNER FORUM

The Huntington County Master Gardeners will hold a public forum on Wednesday February 7 at 6:30 p.m. at in the Huntington City-Township Public Library Conference Room located at 200 West Market St. in Huntington. Ricky Kemery, retired Purdue Extension Ag & Natural Resource Educator, will be presenting on "Gardening Potpourri".

Kemery will share horticultural tips and discuss techniques for growing plants in gardens and landscapes.

Please RSVP by calling the Purdue Extension – Huntington County Office – 1340 South Jefferson St. at 260-358-4826.

FISH FRY

It's that time of the year for the annual Fish & Chicken Supper sponsored by the Huntington County Council on Aging. Our Corporate Sponsor this year is Citizens Telephone Corporation, we do appreciate their sponsorship. The Fish & Chicken Supper will be held on February 2, 2018 at the Knight-Bergman Center in Warren. Dinner will be served from 4:00 pm to 7:00 pm. Adults tickets are $10.00 and Child tickets, ages 6-12 are $5.00. Children under 6 are FREE. Tickets can be purchased in Warren at Citizens Telephone Corporation office and at the Campbell and Dye Insurance Agency. Tickets are available at the Senior Center in Huntington and from HCCOA

Board members. We do need volunteers for this event. If you are interested in helping, please contact Dick Murray at 260-359-4410 or email dmurray@huntingtoncountycy.org

We are looking forward to seeing you at the Fish & Chicken Dinner.

FARM SUCCESSION

Farm families can learn how to ensure a successful ownership transition from one generation to the next in a workshop sponsored by the Purdue Extension Succession Planning Team.

The workshop, "Next Steps to Successfully Growing Future Farm Generations," is Tuesday Feb. 13 from 9 a.m. to noon at the Whitley County 4-H Center; 680 W. Squawbuck Road, Columbia City.

Topics include long-term care, retirement planning, caring for the caregiver, buy/sell agreements, and "Is an LLC right for you?"

Featured speakers include Dan Gordon, attorney, along with members of the Purdue Extension Succession Planning Team.

"Transferring the family farm business can be overwhelming and daunting," said Amanda Dickson, member of the Purdue Extension Succession Planning Team. "This workshop takes an in-depth look at very specific aspects of the transfer. We address issues for you as the owner, the next generation, and the business. This is why we encourage the whole family to attend."

Cost is $40 for the first four family members and $10 for each additional member.

Registration forms are available at <https://bit.ly/2kdqeAc> and should be mailed to Kelly Heckaman, Kosciusko County Extension, 202 W. Main St., Warsaw, IN 46580 by February 5.

This workshop will be presented at other times/locations in Indiana. See the registration form for more details.

For more information, or if you need a reasonable accommodation to participate in this program, contact Jenna Nees at 765-653-8411 or smith535@purdue.edu prior to the program.

SWINE BOOSTERS

The Huntington County Swine Boosters will meet on Tuesday February 6 at 7:00 p.m. in the Huntington Co. Courthouse Annex Conference Room. The discussion items include property improvements and the 2018 Huntington Co. swine open shows. For more information, contact Purdue Extension – Huntington County Office, 1340 South Jefferson, Huntington by calling 260-358-4826.

PATHS TO QUALITY

TRAINING

Purdue Extension will offer a training for childcare and preschool providers on March 5, 2018 from 6:30pm to 8:30pm on topics that will enlighten and entertain the staff and children at your facilities. Purdue Extension Educators will present a workshop from the I am Moving I am Learning curriculum. This research based program will allow participants to earn 2 hours of education towards their Paths to Quality certification.

Programs focus on school readiness, increasing activity and movement, child development and healthy eating. This workshop will focus on Activities for All.

Participants will gain an understanding of how to vary, modify and adapt physical activity and motor skill development to different ability levels in young children. The session helps participants learn strategies that increase skills, development and physical activity participation for ALL young children.

Cost is $5 per registrant.

Purdue University is an equal opportunity/equal access employer. If you need reasonable accommodations to participate in this programming, please contact Karen Hinshaw at 260-358-4826 at least 2 weeks prior to the event.

HOW THE AVERAGE CITIZEN CAN HELP BRING ABOUT FRIENDLIER

POLITICS

(StatePoint) At a divisive moment in our nation's history, you may be wondering how average citizens can help bring about friendlier politics.

Experts suggest that it starts with finding common ground among those whose opinions differ from you. Ira Shapiro, a former ambassador who has held senior positions in the U.S. Senate, recently authored "Broken: Can the Senate Save Itself and the Country?" in order to explore the state of U.S. politics and its future.

Of the U.S. Senate, his area of expertise, he says, "America is deeply divided. But the men and women of the Senate should not mirror -- or worse, inflame -- the nation's divisions. Their job is to overcome them, finding common ground to take collective action in the national interest."

Citizens can apply this principle in a number of ways:

- Get involved. Attend city council meetings and town hall meetings. Join the PTA. But don't just show up -- make your voice heard. Make friends on all sides of the issue. Be a coalition builder. Discover where your beliefs overlap with others before debating about the issues on which you disagree.

- Get in touch. From petitions to postcards to calls and texts, there are numerous ways to get in touch with your elected officials at every level of government. Encourage your representatives to work constructively with their colleagues in an effort to depolarize politics and ultimately be more effective at their jobs.

- Speak out. Organize or attend a rally. Raise money

"The best remedy of all, on both the national and local levels, is to support candidates who are problem solvers and consensus builders, not partisan warriors. Look for the candidates who put the country, or the community, first -- above party allegiance or personal aggrandizement," stresses Shapiro, who also serves as a trade law and global policy consultant. More thoughts from Shapiro are available on his consultancy's website at www.shapiroglobal.com.

Shapiro believes that the Senate is in trouble, but it can be saved. Likewise, everyone, including average citizens, can be a champion for a climate of healthier politics, whether it's around the dinner table, on a social media thread or at a city council meeting.

MORE STUDENTS ARE GOING TO GRAD SCHOOL: HOW ARE THEY PAYING FOR IT?

(StatePoint) Career aspirations are driving more students to graduate school these days, and nearly two thirds believe an advanced degree is the new minimum standard level of education for any professional occupation.

According to "How America Pays for Graduate School," the new national study from Sallie Mae and Ipsos, an independent global market research company, nearly all grad students (95 percent) said an advanced degree is necessary to enter, advance, accelerate or remain competitive in their chosen career.

Cost is less of a factor in the enrollment decision than it is at the undergraduate level, as more than eight in 10 surveyed based their enrollment decision on a school's academic offerings, prestige, location, campus culture, or other personal consideration. However, eight in 10 grad students said they took more responsibility for paying-for-school decisions than they had for their undergraduate studies.

"It is human nature to plan for what you value, and that includes graduate school. Today's students see graduate school as their ticket to a successful and prosperous career, and most have a plan to pay for their advanced degree before they enroll," says Raymond J. Quinlan, chairman and CEO, Sallie Mae. "That planning pays off: the overwhelming majority are confident in the financial decisions they've made about how to pay for their graduate education."

How much did they pay? Students spent an average of $24,812 on grad school in academic year 2016-17, and more than three-fourths of them (77 percent) paid for it, at least in part, by borrowing. Funds borrowed by students covered more than half of the cost (53 percent), while money students earned, including income and savings, paid for 24 percent. Grants, fellowships, scholarships, and tuition waivers accounted for 15 percent, while eight percent of grad school costs came from funds borrowed or contributed by parents or others.

The study also reveals that scholarships and grants are less available for grad students than for undergrads, accounting for just 15 percent of grad school costs. In response, Sallie Mae announced a new Bridging the Dream Scholarship for Graduate Students that will award four $20,000 scholarships in 2018. Students may apply by Feb. 14 by visiting SallieMae.com/BridgingtheDreamGrad.

To view the complete report, visit SallieMae.com/HowAmericaPaysGrad and join the conversation using #HowGradsPay.

As a graduate degree continues to become the educational norm, students will continue to plan and find creative ways to meet the cost.

NEW BENEFITS AND INSURANCE OPTIONS YOU CAN EXPECT IN 2018

(StatePoint) Ever wondered whether your insurance policy was actually working for you? You may be in luck, as your insurance plan may start to follow the same trends being adopted in other industries: simpler, more convenient and personalized products – all supported by the latest mobile technology.

This year, Stephanie Shields, a product marketing and development expert from Aflac, (Aflac herein means American Family Life Assurance Company of Columbus and American Family Life Assurance Company of New York) says that policyholders can expect these “value-added services” to become less of a nice-to-have and more of a given:

- Telemedicine: Consulting with a physician and getting treatment online offers greater flexibility and may become essential to busy people.

- Fraud protection: Identity theft is likely top of mind for policyholders and businesses. Expect to see better fraud protection, including ongoing internet monitoring and full identity restoration after a data breach.

- Bill negotiation: The ever-changing health care system is often confusing to navigate. Ongoing education, as well as help understanding medical bills, can ultimately mean greater access to efficient, affordable care.

Transformed Benefits

Insurance providers will likely shift the customer experience to follow that of retailers and other industries. In 2018, expect to see insurers such as Aflac offer more cohesive insurance policies that combine multiple benefit types into one plan.

Beyond the Basics

You may find things that were once luxuries, such as 401K matching, Flexible Spending Accounts (FSA) and even annual bonuses, are not as successful in meeting the expectations of today’s employees. As those expectations grow, successful businesses can continue to close the gap with such services as:

- Health advocacy: Access to round-the-clock personal health advocates who can answer health care and insurance-related questions.

- Financial and legal fitness: Access to financial and legal advisors who can educate consumers on the preparation of wills and other legal documents.

- College-advisory services: These might include resources to help lower college costs and navigate the admissions process.

- No more “one-size-fits-all”: Communications from benefits providers may be more tailored to individual needs.

- Bite-sized communications: Concise information about workplace benefits, tips for using benefits to help protect financial security and better explanations of coverage combinations that are appropriate at various life stages.

- New format: While some benefits information will still be delivered in the typical booklet format, more businesses may consider using online articles, digital signs, brown-bag luncheons and town halls.

- Frequent communications: Employers may communicate about benefits throughout the year, or time communications to coincide with life events, such as employee anniversaries.

Time Spent Smarter

In 2018, employers who have not yet adopted online platforms to manage benefits may do so. Advantages include year-round, convenient access to pertinent information and one-page views of all benefits options and selections, enabling you to identify any holes you may have in coverage.

Penny-Pinching

More voluntary benefits, such as accident, critical illness/cancer, hospital indemnity, life and disability insurance, are on the horizon. According to the 2017 Aflac WorkForces Report, 81 percent of employees see a growing need for voluntary insurance benefits, and 90 percent consider voluntary insurance at least somewhat part of a comprehensive benefits program.

Thanks to a tech-driven world and the growing demands of consumers, 2018 may see insurers expand their services to offer even more convenience and personalization.

TIPS TO REFRESH YOURSELF

(StatePoint) In a fitness rut? Instead of simply attempting to lose weight or drop a clothing size, consider placing a more positive spin on your objectives. Whether your stated goal is to try new sports and hobbies or to get in touch with nature, you can better refresh yourself by setting goals that help you get in shape while appreciating your surroundings and having fun.

Try Something New

Testing out new sports and hobbies doesn’t need to require a giant time or financial commitment. There are plenty of ways to dip your toe in the water. Thanks to online marketplace coupon services, it’s easy find discounted access to local experiences like orienteering and rock climbing classes, fishing excursions, white water rafting journeys and more. Consider giving your fun and fitness goals a recharge by trying out something completely different.

Make More of It

Whether you're hiking, biking, skiing or trying any other new outdoor sport, consider making the most of your excursions with tech gear that enhances the experience. For example, the PRO TREK Smart Outdoor Watch WSD-F20 from Casio, powered by Android Wear 2.0, has GPS capabilities, a full color map display and water resistance of up to 50 meters, making it well suited for rugged adventures. Because it can be used offline in areas without cellular service, it's can free you up to go farther off the beaten trail. Find a great fishing spot or vista on a hike? Spot some beautiful wildlife on the trail? Its Location Memory app instantly reads a user's current location, so you can add notes to otherwise unmarked map spots. Additionally, Casio's Moment Setter app gives users an opportunity to automatically receive important alerts, such as best fishing times, rest break intervals, and sunrise/sunset times.

Get Competitive

Having a race or competition up ahead on the calendar can be the motivating force that drives you to get off the couch, get fit and enjoy the outdoors. Whether it's a 10k, obstacle race or a triathlon, training for such a competition can have cascading effects, leading to new healthy habits beyond more frequent workouts, such as getting more rest and hydration and eating a healthier diet. Completing your goal can be a truly rewarding experience.

When it comes to your health and wellness, think beyond the scale. Refresh your body and mind with new experiences that lead to healthy habits.

NEW WAYS TO IMPROVE THE WAY YOU FEEL

(StatePoint) Nearly 25 million Americans experience daily physical discomfort, according to the National Institutes of Health, which can affect mood, mobility and quality of life.

While the reasons for discomfort vary, the way it is experienced doesn't -- peripheral nerves are responsible for delivering sensory information, such as itch, temperature change and physical pressure to the brain.

With this in mind, experts are identifying new ways to promote nerve health and comfort by inhibiting inflammatory compounds in nerve cells, and at the same time, encouraging healthy neurotransmitter levels in the brain.

They have discovered that a fatty acid called palmitoylethanolamide

(PEA), produced naturally by the body as part of a healthy inflammatory and immune response, inhibits the secretion of inflammatory compounds from mast cells, a type of white blood cell. As we age, our number of mast cells decreases, causing our remaining mast cells to work harder. That can make them overly sensitive, activating inflammatory processes linked to nerve discomfort.

"By inhibiting inflammatory compounds released by mast cells, PEA promotes the body's natural response to uncomfortable nerve stimuli at the cellular level," says Michael A. Smith, M.D., senior health scientist and spokesperson for Fort Lauderdale, Fla.-based Life Extension.

Smith points out that it is now possible to take PEA in supplement form. One option is Life Extension's ComfortMAX, a dual-action nerve support supplement which contains both PEA as well as Honokiol, a naturally occurring lignan compound derived from magnolia that is shown to support "calming" receptors in the brain, known as GABA receptors, which affect the way the brain perceives discomfort.

These statements have not been evaluated by the Food and Drug Administration and these products are not intended to diagnose, treat, cure, or prevent any disease, however, many experts believe they can be effective in pain management. More information can be found at www.lecomfortmax.com.

"It's only natural to think topically or locally when we wish to inhibit discomfort. However, taking in the bigger picture could mean more effective relief," says Dr. Smith.

and Huntington, as well as Germany. Boren's specific interest in the Haupert Institute for Agricultural Studies stems from his personal experience as a farmer. In 1965, the Borens established LeLaLo Farms in Upland and also maintain cattle operations in Rush Springs, Oklahoma. For 50 years these farms have been active in nature preservation and crop and animal production. Boren was also an instrumental donor for Huntington University's Ware Crop Science Production Facility.

"I believe in the mission of Huntington University and have confidence in Dr. Emberton as she leads the University into great success in the years ahead," said Boren.

Boren's generosity is well known in Indiana as he and his late wife LaRita have been long-time supporters of Christian higher education to help train the next generation of business, community and church leaders. In recognition of their support for higher education across the state, both were selected as members of the Indiana Academy sponsored by the Independent Colleges of Indiana (ICI). LaRita was inducted in 2008; Leland in 2011. Each has received numerous honorary doctorates from both public and private Indiana universities.
