DREYER SCHOLARSHIPS

Two Parkview Huntington Hospital employees – both Huntington residents -- have been awarded Jill Dreyer scholarships for the fall 2016 semester.

Angela Skinner, RN, and Olivia Eckert each received $750 toward their education costs for the current academic semester.

Skinner is a registered nurse in the hospital's Family Birthing Center. She is working toward her Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BSN) through Western Governors University – Indiana.

Eckert is a patient care technician with the hospital's Medical/Surgical unit. She is pursuing an Associate of Science in Nursing (ASN) at Ivy Tech Community College, Fort Wayne.

The awards were announced by Mike Perkins, director, Parkview Huntington Foundation, which administers the Jill Dreyer Scholarship funds.

"This scholarship is a great example of generosity at work at the hospital," he said. "The program is funded by gifts from Parkview Huntington Hospital co-workers during the foundation's annual Employee Generosity Campaign, and with proceeds from this year's Parkview Huntington Community Gala."

The scholarship was established in 2004 in memory of the late Jill Dreyer, a Parkview Huntington Hospital nurse. It provides four $750 scholarships each year to full- and part-time Parkview Huntington Hospital employees pursuing a nursing education. It also is used to reimburse qualified candidates for fees incurred taking their final examination for various nursing certifications. Since its inception, the Jill Dreyer Scholarship program has provided $22,750 in assistance to hospital employees.

The Jill Dreyer Scholarship program reflects Parkview's commitment to encouraging aspiring nurses – and experienced nurses furthering their career studies -- to aim high. In a continuously changing healthcare environment, nurses who advance their knowledge and skills on an ongoing basis are able to provide better patient-centered care and innovative clinical leadership. Parkview Huntington Hospital and the Parkview Huntington Foundation are dedicated to improving the health of community residents and to inspiring greater well-being for patients and caregivers alike.

DEER WATCH

The Indiana Department of Transportation, the Indiana State Police and the Indiana Department of Natural Resources remind drivers to stay alert as deer become more active in fall months on Indiana's roadways.

Nearly 50 percent of all vehicle crashes involving deer occur between October and December. Deer are generally more active during mating season in late October into early November. And with many farmers harvesting crops, deer could be on the move at any time, encountering roads more frequently and increasing the potential for collisions.

Across the state in 2015, there were more than 15,000 deer-related collisions, including vehicles crashing attempting to avoid striking a deer.

With the increased number of deer heading toward the roadways, deer-vehicle crashes will happen, but

FUNDRAISING CHAMPIONS

After the conclusion of Salamonie School's recent Otis Spunkmeyer cookie dough fundraiser, they named the three top salespeople in the building. The top sellers for the building earned cash prizes for their outstanding fundraising efforts.

Our third place seller was Dalton Stephan, who received a check for $50. Second prize of $75 went to Carter Bowers, and our top seller, Weston Piquene was awarded $100. These young men did an outstanding job, and their efforts combined with the rest of the students who sold helped us reach our goal of increasing our sales by at least 10% over last year. It's a great time to be a Salamonie Rebel.

drivers can take measures to keep collisions to a minimum. Knowing when deer are most active and practicing defensive driving will help reduce your chances of becoming a statistic:

* Deer are most active between sunset and sunrise, especially in rural areas.

* Deer often travel in groups. If you see one, others are likely nearby. Stay alert!

* Pay special attention in areas where you have seen deer before and in areas near "Deer Crossing" warning signs.

* Exercise caution along woodlot edges, at hills and blind turns.

* Use high-beam headlights at night when there is no opposing traffic.

* Scan for illuminated eyes and dark silhouettes near the side of or on the roadway.

* If you see a deer, slow your speed drastically, even if the deer is far away.

* NEVER swerve to avoid hitting a deer. More serious crashes occur when drivers try to miss a deer but hit something else.

* Buckle up!

Studies have shown that novelties like deer whistles are ineffective in deterring deer. The best way to avoid an accident is to be alert.

Even when practicing safe driving, sometimes hitting a deer is inevitable. If a driver hits a deer, it is important to remain calm and do not touch the deer or approach it. Wounded deer are unpredictable and can be dangerous. Drivers should pull off the road, remain in the vehicle and make sure everyone is safe. Motorists involved in a collision are required to call the police and report a crash with at least $1,000 in property damage or if someone is injured.

To report a deer carcass on an interstate, U.S. highway or state road, contact one of INDOT's six districts to report it. Find INDOT district contact information at <http://indot.in.gov>.

CYBER AWARENESS

The Indiana Department of Homeland Security (IDHS) and Indiana Office of Technology (IOT) urge Hoosiers to follow prudent practices in their online activities to protect personal information. October is designated as Cybersecurity Awareness Month in Indiana via a proclamation from Governor Mike Pence and nationally by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security and other partners.

"By the millions, Americans are falling victim to hackers who break into their online information, whether attacking their digital devices directly or striking the systems of major corporations with which they do business," said Chief Information Officer Dewand Neely, who oversees IOT. "There is no better time than now – Cybersecurity Awareness Month – for Hoosiers to take steps to protect themselves."

IDHS, IOT and the Indiana State Police are among multiple state agencies partnering to operate the Indiana Information Sharing and Analysis Center (IN-ISAC), which helps reduce the overall cost of cybersecurity by centralizing resources, leveraging large-scale purchasing, improving prevention efforts and containing threats.

At cybersecurity.in.gov, Hoosiers can find up-to-date cybersecurity tips and other resources to help them make informed decisions when online.

For example:
 • Don't click on links sent from unknown sources.
 • Use strong passwords with laptop, credit, bank and other accounts. Don't share passwords.
 • Don't overshare on social media sites. If you post too much information about yourself, an identity thief can find information about your life, use it to answer "challenge" questions on your accounts, and get access to your money and personal information.

• Keep your browser secure. To guard your online transactions, use encryption software that scrambles information you send over the Internet. A "lock" icon on the status bar of your Internet browser means your information will be safe when it's transmitted. Look for the lock before you send personal or financial information online.

• Safely Dispose of Personal Information. Before you dispose of a computer, get rid of all the personal information it stores. Use a wipe utility program to overwrite the entire hard drive. Before you dispose of a mobile device, check your owner's manual, the service provider's website, or the device manufacturer's website for information on how to delete information permanently, and how to save or transfer information to a new device.

Beyond providing practical resources to Hoosiers, the State of Indiana is constantly engaged in using technology to maximize cybersecurity protections across public and private networks. This year, Governor Pence created the Indiana State Executive Council on Cybersecurity to formalize strategic cybersecurity partnerships across the public and private sectors. The council is composed of people from both government and business.

"The increasing interconnectivity of the Internet and the rapid sophistication of technology make it impossible for any single entity to ensure cybersecurity," said David Kane, executive director of IDHS. "A successful strategy depends on teamwork involving individuals in many different roles, and that's exactly the kind of approach Indiana is implementing."

YEAR OF THE VOLUNTEER

You are powerful! Your ability to exercise that power can be immediately felt this coming October. In the midst of celebrating 100 years of Red Cross service, the Indiana Region of the American Red Cross is launching one of their largest campaigns statewide. On Monday, Oct. 3, 2016, the 'Feel the Power of Volunteering,' campaign will kick-off with 20 billboards across central Indiana.

A select number of billboards will be translated in Spanish and Burmese, and will also be seen in digital form. It is the goal of this campaign, that the community at large becomes inspired to feel their own power of volunteerism. Among billboards, both visual and audio public service announcements will also be available to download on a webpage designed specifically for this campaign, which can be found at:

www.redcross.org/feelthepower.

"This campaign is an opportunity to showcase some of our many superstar volunteers that are committed to helping each member of our community," said Chad Priest, regional CEO of the American Red Cross. "Our organization is currently using precision focus strategies to help us discover what volunteers are seeking from us –so that we in turn, can provide them the best volunteer engagement experience.

I believe this campaign is one of the many ways to achieve that."

On social media, the Red Cross invites current volunteers and those that may be thinking about volunteering with the Red Cross –to strike a power pose using the #feelthepowerofvolunteering hashtag, and tagging @INRedCross on Twitter, @indianaredross on Instagram and /INRedCross on Facebook.

The Indiana Region serves 87 Indiana counties consisting of 10 Homeland Security Disaster Districts and six Red Cross chapters: Central Indiana (Indianapolis headquarters), Northern Indiana (South Bend headquarters), Northeast Indiana (Fort Wayne headquarters), Northwest Indiana (Merrillville headquarters), Southern Indiana (Evansville headquarters) and West Central Indiana (Terre Haute headquarters). For more information on the Indiana Region:

American Myths, Legends, and Tall Tales: An Encyclopedia of American

Folklore is a fascinating survey of the entire history of tall tales, folklore and mythology in the United States from earliest times to the present, including stories and myths from the modern era that have become an essential part of contemporary popular culture. In modern times, folklore and tall tales experienced a rejuvenation with the emergence of urban legends and the growing popularity of science fiction and conspiracy theories, with mass media such as comic books, television and films contributing to the retelling of old myths. The encyclopedia's entries provide a fascinating glimpse into the collective American imagination over the past 400 years through the stories that have shaped it. KISSING THE PIG . . .

by Principal Dawn Morgan

We recently wrapped up our Otis Spunkmeyer cookie dough fundraiser at Salamonie School. When the fundraiser began, I wanted to think of a fun way to motivate students to beat their sales total from last year. It seems like students always love to see the adults in their schools doing some fun and silly things. The challenge that I presented to our Salamonie students was three tiered. If they sold 10% more items than they sold last year I would sit in a dunk tank and allow every student who sold items to attempt to dunk me. In addition to that, if they sold 15% more items than last year, I would wear a clown suit for a day at school. The final tier of the challenge was that students sold 20% more items than last year, I would add kissing a pig to the fun things they would get to see me do.

I am proud to say that our Salamonie students far exceeded the numbers required to get me to do all three of those things! Last year our students sold just over $10,000 worth of cookie dough. This year our students sold over $18,000 in cookie dough. The staff of Salamonie School could not be prouder of our students' efforts. True to my word to students, I spent last Wednesday during all recesses sitting in a dunk tank outside the school so 110 students could attempt to dunk me. They were successful . . . a lot! On Friday, I fulfilled the rest of my obligation and wore a clown suit all day at school and ended our week by kissing a pig in the gymnasium prior to the end of the school day.

Some of the money raised is going to be used to purchase license for the program IXL which helps students make gains in Math and English Language Arts. We are excited to be able to use this money for something that is going to help us raise student achievement for all of our students. We would like to thank Scott Canady for delivering and allowing us to use the dunk tank and Bret Vickrey for delivering a pig for our fundraiser wrap up!
