This will be our last week for the farmers market this season.

We invite our customers to come out and enjoy biscuits and gravy with the vendors.

It has been a good year for the market even though the growing season was not the best. We were all glad to be able to provide you with what we could.

There should be green beans and maybe a few more tomatoes, apples and fall items. Also will be the regulars. The tenderloin guys plan to have more of the tenderloin patties and the breaded ones.

So come out and join us for our final day of the season.

Plans are for a winter market November 20th the Saturday before Thanksgiving to help with your holiday preparations.

COUNCIL NOTES

The Town Council of Warren met Monday, September 13, 2010 in Special Session at Assembly Hall.

A rate study for the wastewater service was discussed and it was recommended that a 20% increase in the customer service charge as well as the metered usage charge be implemented. For an average user of 4000 gallons of water a month, the raise would increase monthly billing by $6.98. A discussion regarding the establishment of a Stormwater Utility was also continued. A tentative schedule was set for introduction of the wastewater ordinance on October 11, Public Hearing on October 25 and adoption on November 8 with the rate to be in place for the January 1, 2011 billing.

Fall Clean-Up, by consensus, was set for October 4th through 9th, following the same schedule and rules as used previously.

Morrison reported that the office will be closed on September 24th for Keystone Training in Daleville and that State Board of Account Auditors are presently on site.

A regular Council meeting was held at 6:30 p.m. September 13, 2010.

President Cartwright called the meeting to order by announcing the opening of a public hearing on the 2011 Municipal Budget.

HONOR EMPLOYEES

In Indiana, over 19,000 people with physical and developmental disabilities rely on Direct Support Professionals for essential support with employment, connections within their community, and basic health and safety needs. As the teachers, cheerleaders and many times the primary advocate for the individuals they serve, Direct Support Professionals (DSPs) require a broad range of skills. yet they earn an average wage far below the typical American worker.

To honor their important role and highlight the growing shortage of Direct Support Professionals in Indiana, Governor Mitch Daniels declared September 13-17, 2010 to be Direct Support Professional Recognition Week.

Pathfinder Services employs over 166 Direct Support Professionals in Huntington County, 75 in Marshall and Starke Counties, and 60 in Wabash County. "As we celebrated the 20th Anniversary of the Americans with Disabilities Act earlier this year, we are glad to take this week to celebrate the contributions of the valued DSPs who make so many accomplishments possible for Hoosiers with disabilities," said Sandy Wing, Senior Director of Community Services for Pathfinder Services, Inc. "Direct Support Professionals week is a time we can give a special thank you to our staff for everything they do throughout the year to help improve the lives of everyone we serve," Wing added.

"Indiana's 26,000 Direct Support Professionals are making differences every day in the lives of those they support," said Shannon Gilbert, President of Direct Support Professionals of Indiana, a new group of DSPs focused on development and awareness about their profession. "DSPs assist individuals to see beyond their disabilities and help them live meaningful lives within their community. Some individuals with disabilities may have been told they would never walk or they have never been given the opportunity to make their own choices. This is not acceptable in the eyes of a DSP. This week is a great time to recognize the DSPs who make dreams into a reality for people with disabilities."

Indiana DSPs will be celebrating Direct Support Professionals Recognition Week by increasing awareness of their role supporting Hoosiers with disabilities and encouraging others to investigate a career in their important field. Indiana's DSP week coincides with National Direct Support Professionals Week as declared by the United States Senate in June of this year.

Asking for input and receiving none, the hearing was closed.

Ryan Daniel of OCRA was present to discuss funding opportunities, requirements for CFF grants in particular. In discussion of the situation with the newly discovered sinkhole and possible ramifications related to repair or restructuring, Daniel suggested use of a planning grant to begin the engineering process. It was determined that III-A Development District be contacted to begin the process. Noted was that the timing of a planning grant would place any application for CFF in the Spring Round of 2012.

A resident was present to discuss an increase in water usage. He had been notified through the Clerk-Treasurer's Office on approximately August 16th that usage had increased by 4000 gallons for the September 1 billing. The meter had been rechecked and subsequent readings showed a return to average levels. He requested Council action as the Clerk-Treasurer would not adjust usage back to his average level. Following discussion, it was determined that Council would not approve any adjustment as cause had not been shown to do so.

PLATELET DONORS NEEDED

Although platelets are becoming increasingly important in modern medical care, comparatively few people donate this life-saving component of blood.

Just four percent of the 7 million donation procedures performed each year through the American Red Cross involve donors who give platelets. That, Red Cross officials say, is something they hope to change by encouraging more people to donate platelets, and help save the lives of patients needing specialized care.

"Each year, thousands of children and adults will undergo care and treatment for cancer, leukemia and other serious diseases," said Sharyn Whitman, CEO for the Indiana-Ohio Blood Services Region of the American Red Cross. "And since platelets are very fragile and must be transfused within five days of donation, someone very sick may literally be waiting for your donation."

Platelets are cells in blood that help form clots and control bleeding. Cancer patients often need platelets when chemotherapy and radiation lower their platelet counts, or when their bodies can't produce enough platelets on their own. Patients undergoing surgery, trauma care or bone marrow transplants may also need platelets to stop or prevent internal bleeding or blood loss.

Platelets are most efficiently collected through apheresis—a special donation process that involves separating platelets from other blood components. Depending on blood type, some whole blood donors may be asked to consider donating platelets at designated donation sites through the Red Cross.

The Red Cross is primarily recruiting new male donors with AB positive, A positive, B positive and O positive blood. "Whatever you choose to give, be it platelets or blood, you'll be helping to save the day," said Whitman.

Give blood or platelets Oct. 1 to 31 and be entered to win a weekend getaway for two at the Inn and Spa at Cedar Falls, Ohio and a zip-line tour through Hocking Hills Canopy Tours.

Platelets can only be collected at a donation center and require an appointment. Please call 1-800-589-8127 to schedule your platelet pheresis donation or to learn more.

MORE WHEAT

If this dry weather pattern continues into October, area farmers might remember an old saying: "Plant your wheat in the dust and your bins will bust!" They will, of course, keep their fingers crossed that enough rain will come in the fall to get it off to a good start before winter.

This year the prospects for growing wheat certainly look better than a year ago. Some major international wheat-producing countries have had weather problems. Drought and wildfires have hit Russia and surrounding counties, while too much rain has caused flooding and other issues in Canada. Supplies of wheat world-wide have dropped. As a result, cash and futures prices of wheat in the U.S. have risen past $6.00 per bushel.

Purdue agricultural economist, Chris Hurt, feels that wheat planting will increase by more than 50% as compared to last year. He recommends that farmers contact seed suppliers to secure the varieties that they hope to plant. "Seed availability may be the limiting factor on how many acres of wheat get seeded this fall," he said.

You might remember that state-wide there was record-low wheat planting in Indiana in the fall of 2009. Only 300,000 acres of winter wheat were planted in 2009 according to a United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) planting report. In the fall of '09 low returns and poor prices for wheat along with extremely wet weather limited acres planted in Indiana.

Note that basically all the wheat grown in Indiana is soft red winter wheat which is fall-seeded. It must go through a period of about 6 weeks with temperatures near freezing. This is called vernalization and it is required for winter wheat to joint, flower and produce seed.

Area farmers who harvested wheat in 2010 more than likely had some incidence of Fusarium Head Blight (FHB) also known as scab in their fields. For this reason university specialists are recommending that farmers avoid planting seed held in their bins this fall. University of Wisconsin Extension specialists have prepared a publication called, "Top 7 Recommendations for Winter Wheat Establishment in 2010."

The Wisconsin specialists recommend the following, "To maximize wheat yields in 2010, it is imperative that growers plant certified or private (professionally prepared) seed that is true to variety, clean, and has a high germination percentage (>85%)." This publication can be found at the following Web site: www.coolbean.info.

Wheat continues to be an important crop for this area of the state. According to the most recent Indiana Agricultural Statistics information (2008), Huntington County ranked 13th out of 92 Indiana counties in wheat production.

SEPTEMBER FORGOT TO CHANGE ITS NAME

by V Neil Wyrick
Did you know that September is the seventh month in the year? Well, it was until the year 153 BC. That is why its name is derived from the Latin word septum, meaning seven. And when two other months were added to the calendar, it just got shoved along but didn't get a name change. And as you might well expect everyone doesn't call it September. In Croatia they call it Rujan which mean red month, the color of the leaves falling in anticipation of winter. In the Czech Republic it is called Zari which means to glow or shine. Perhaps it could be called the airport month because if you use your imagination, as you watch the birds in their activity, think of them as lining up on their private little airports readying for their flight south.

Where you live not only affects what you call it, but what you celebrate. In Japan, Respect for the Aged Day sends a message that bodes well for any nation willing to do just that. In the Netherlands, it can hardly be said they celebrate their budget but it is the month in which it is read out loud by the Queen who arrives in a gilded coach to do so. We, of course, think of it as the end of summer, as the month of Labor Day, which by the way was first celebrated in New York City, September 6, 1882. Today we honor the workers by doing as little of that working as possible on the first Monday of this ninth month.

Mother Nature starts shopping in September for colors other than the green she has been wearing all summer long. And you can help her choice of colors out in your own garden by planting winter pansies, flowering kale and fall mums. It is time to practice gardening intelligence by watering trees and shrubs less so that they can harden before winter sets in. And it's a time for sharing, because if you have a garden you have most likely planted more squash and tomatoes than you could possibly eat.

September can be the best of times - the heat of summer is almost over and the cool, comfortable weather of fall comes to call. It can be the worst of times - it is the worst month for hurricanes. And since I live in South Florida, this September gift is not appreciated.

To those of us who have added up a large number of years, there is a song written some fifty years ago that will stir our memories.

Try to remember the kind of September

When life was slow and oh, so mellow.

Try to remember the kind of September

When grass was green and grain was yellow

Try to remember the kind of September

When you were a tender and callow fellow.

Whether it is nature's fall or our own chronological fall, we all continue to say, "Where has the summer gone?" Well, ask the leaves, already they are having planning sessions on when they will let gravity take over.

The summer of our youth remembered and now in my 78th year, I just give thanks that I have arrived at this, the fall of my existence. Give thanks because it is the best way to enjoy either kind of fall.

GENERATIONS OF PERFECTIONISTS!

by The FlyLady,
Marla Cilley

From the day we were born we have had perfectionism shoved down our throats. You know those words as well as I do, "If you can't do it right then don't do it at all!" We were also forced to redo things when we didn't do them to suit the person giving the ORDERS!

None of us like to be dictated to! What we were taught by these words and actions is that it didn't matter how well we did something because it was never going to live up to the expectations of that person we were trying to please. Do you want to know what happened then? We gave up! We didn't even try anymore because we knew it would not be good enough.

This pattern of being put down was all you heard. That is why we feel the need to beat ourselves up when we don't do something right! This negative attitude was drilled into our heads. We were brainwashed with this perfectionism. Now in our parent's defense; they had the same thing done to them. It is all they knew! We can put a stop to this vicious cycle of perfectionism through the generations.

We are our own person and we have made a choice to change. We are not being dictated to by our parents any longer. You may have just gotten fed up with living in CHAOS (Can't Have Anyone Over Syndrome) or you may have heard about this FlyLady person who can help you get your house clean. Whatever the reason; you are ready to try something new. This time the choice is yours!

When we get to make the decision it is much easier for us to do! The only problem is that we still have those negative voices echoing in our heads. This is why we beat ourselves up! It is those voices from the past that make FLYing difficult! They tell us the same old message we have heard from day one! You have to do it perfectly or don't do it. So when you are not FLYing the way you think you are supposed to then you quit trying. This is also why we get overwhelmed!

In the perfectionism we had forced on us; we look at the whole picture instead of just doing something. We don't think that 15 minutes can make a difference in a messy house. This goes back to getting it done right. We expect ourselves to magically do it all in one day! We are not Supermen or Superwomen! So with this negativity ping ponging in our heads we tell ourselves we don't have time!

The real thing we are saying is not that we don't have time, but that we don't have time to do it right! This is when we begin to do what has always been done to us! We beat ourselves up or we punish ourselves. Because of this perfectionism we don't feel worthy!

We don't feel worthy to have nice things. We don't feel worthy to live in peace. We don't feel worthy to enjoy ourselves and worst of all we don't feel worthy to be loved! I want to help you eliminate those unsaid thoughts from your mind. I want to replace them with loving thoughts and rewards for taking baby steps.

Your home did not get messy in a day and it is not going to get clean overnight. We are not our mothers and fathers. I don't expect you to be perfect! So quit expecting perfection from your precious little inner child. When you start feeling defeated, overwhelmed and beaten down; I want you to recognize the voices you are hearing in your head. Then say delete delete delete!

You can do this! You are worthy of being loved! I will start this ball rolling by saying there is no wrong way or right way to FLY; there is only your way! It all starts by going to shine your sink and Finally Loving Yourself by not beating yourself up when you are not perfect!

POULSON HOG ROAST

The descendants and families of Grover and Edna Rennaker Poulson met at the home of Larry and Roselyn Poulson on August 15, 2010. Dan Poulson and his daughter, Kristi Williams, planned and organized it. Dan knew it would be a hog roast with him furnishing the hog and other food. The hog was roasted by Joe Nash.

Grover and Edna celebrated their 50th anniversary in March 1963. Grover died in February 1964 and Edna September 1970. There were 12 children born to this couple, 7 sons and 5 daughters. Lois, Everett, Ralph and Margaret Knight are deceased. Still living are Harold 91, Freda Finley 86, James 85, Mildred Gilbert 83, William 81, Robert 79, Hazel Ruth Brooks 76 and Daniel 75. There were 46 grandchildren, 80 great-grandchildren, 121 great-great grandchildren and 13 great-great-great grandchildren and 2 more yet this year. So with all these children and their families we had a total of 230 present, which is only half of our total family members.

People started coming early Sunday morning from as far as California, Florida, Wisconsin, West Virginia, Georgia, Illinois, Ohio and many from all parts of Indiana.

Before our noon meal Carol Byrd gave prayer and Cylest Brooks sang the National Anthem.

After our meal we had a balloon launch with a picture taken as we let them go. There was a card attached to each balloon asking anyone that found one to send back and let us know where it had been found. Then a group picture was taken and also each family picture was taken.

Then it was fun time. It was a hot day, but still kids enjoyed a moonwalk, courtesy of John Brooks, hay rides by Kenneth Poulson which was a nice long ride. He made 4 trips and each time the wagon was full. Young and old enjoyed the ride. Also corn toss, ladder golf, croquet, tattoos, pitching washers, volleyball, stick horse races, sack races and Dizzy Lizzy races. Kids had a lot of fun. It was so hot the adults didn't do much but sit and visit.

Certificates were given: Harold Poulson the oldest at 91. Youngest was foster child of Jason and Jamie Onsley, 3 months. Ralph Poulson family having 42 members present. Gracie Schmidt being the one from farthest away, California. Mark and Margaret have the family with the most (90) members. All 12 children had family members to enjoy the day.

Around 4:00 a 5 gallon wooden crank ice cream freezer was filled and the cranking began. Even the little ones wanted a turn cranking. What a story they will have about helping make ice cream. It took a little longer to get it done, but it sure was good, along with cake and cookies. It was a hot day so homemade ice cream was just right to end the day.

Grover and Edna would be so happy that the family is growing and still have family get-togethers every year in August and at Christmas.

A big thank you to Cindy Fitch for sending every family a note about August 15 and also making cards for all 200 balloons. A big thank you to Kristi for all she did. To all the guys who came to set up tents on Saturday morning and coming back on Monday evening to take table, chairs and tents down.

Especially a big thank you to all the families that came. Dan was wanting to get 200 there, you made him happy by getting 230 there.

Appreciation to Larry and Roselyn and Dan for being hosts for the day.

We've gotten notes back from balloons being found in Ashland Ohio about 195 miles, Berne and Plum Tree.
