CELEBRATING 180TH

The 180th Anniversary of Asbury Chapel, UMC located in Jackson Township, Wells County will be celebrated on May 20th at the church. This date also commemorates the 50th anniversary of the merger of The Methodist Church with the Evangelical United Brethren Church.

The service will begin at 9:30 a.m. and will conclude at 11:30 with a baked potato luncheon in the church basement. All who ever attended during this 180 years are encouraged to attend. It is the pleasure of the church members to serve lunch, but numbers are needed. Please text Karen @ 765-499-8308 or call Glennis @ 765-348-3357.

The church began meeting in 1838 in the home of Robert Alexander who was one of the first inhabitants of Jackson Township. Later it was moved to the one-room school building located on Mr. Alexander's property. In 1987 after the end of the oil boom days, a frame building was purchased from the town of Montpelier. The building was moved the seven miles to its present location and stands as a beacon on State Road 3 two miles north of the intersection of State Roads 3/18 or what is locally known as the Paradise Point/Tin Lizzy. The building has been remodeled several times over the years and its members have been good stewards in keeping the building in good repair.

As with all small churches in the past Asbury Chapel has shared preachers with other local United Methodist Churches. Asbury has been on charges with Roll, McNatt, and Montpelier. Over the years many student pastors from Taylor University served the church. The trend now is to use part-time pastors for small churches. Presently and for the past few years, Phil Freel, Jr. has faithfully served as pastor.

It's NOT JUST AGE THAT BRINGS ON THAT MID-LIFE CRISIS

from the American Counseling Association

Have you reached mid-life yet? It's a simple question, but a difficult one to answer. Adolescents may see mid-life beginning at 30. Adults in their 40s may view 50 or 60 as when mid-life begins.

Although experts say that mid-life is usually somewhere between 35 and 65, age is only part of the equation. More important are the feelings you have of moving between youth and your senior years, and what you do with those emotions.

Mid-life period isn't necessarily just calendar-based. Often, it's more seeing you no longer look or feel as youthful and energetic as you once did. That realization can lead some people to start taking action to make them appear younger -- buying that sports car, for example.

Alfred Adler, a major counseling influence, emphasized mid-life is a period when it's important to separate wants from needs. That can help simplify life and keep you from chasing shiny new objects in a midlife crisis that really aren't going to make you younger or even appear younger.

The real "need" of this period is to accept mid-life as a normal part of life, and to see it as an opportunity where you can use the experience and wisdom you've gained to make a difference in people's lives and to contribute to society.

So while you might buy that sports car, there are better ways to make mid-life produce positive results. Start with making a list of lessons you've learned since adolescence and examine how this knowledge has served you and helped enrich your life and the lives of others.

It's also a good time to begin exploring activities to help you feel healthy and relaxed. Starting or maintaining an exercise regime, for example, won't make you 21 again, but is a means of making the best of where you actually are in life.

Mid-life is also an excellent time to examine your life goals. Maybe you want to think about a career move or to consider social or relationship changes. It may be a time to talk with a professional counselor if you find that you need guidance in understanding the changes mid-life has brought.

Mid-life is only a crisis for someone unable to accept the changes maturing brought. When handled correctly, mid-life can be an opportunity to explore who you are and what goals you want to achieve as your life moves forward.

BUZZARD IS AMBASSADOR

A first-year student in Trine University's Doctor of Physical Therapy program has been selected as a Core Ambassador for the American Physical Therapy Association (APTA).

Cameron Buzzard, from Warren, Indiana, will help promote student engagement in APTA by serving as a link between the organization's Student Assembly Board of Directors and students in physical therapy or physical therapy assistant programs throughout the state.

Responsibilities will include facilitating email communication between the directors and faculty contacts at academic programs, presenting APTA membership applications and taking part in an advocacy project.

Core Ambassadors are selected from APTA membership through a competitive application process. Ambassadors are chosen based on academic standing, leadership and organizational skills, and passion for the advancement of the physical therapy profession.

APTA seeks to improve the health and quality of life of individuals in society by advancing physical therapist practice, education and research, and by increasing the awareness and understanding of physical therapy's role in the nation's health care system.

BICYCLE AWARENESS

Every year, hundreds of bicyclists are killed and tens of thousands more are injured in preventable crashes and while the majority of those accidents involve automobiles, some even occur on driveways, sidewalks and bike paths. In support of National Bike Safety Month in May, AAA Hoosier Motor Club wants to help ensure the safety of Hoosier cyclists.

Sadly, in 2016, 840 people were killed in bicycle crashes in the U.S. (19 in Indiana), a 1.3-percent national increase from 2015 and the highest number on record since 1991.

Adults aged 50 to 59 years have the highest bicycle death rates while children (5-14 years) and adolescents (15-19 years) have the highest rates of nonfatal bicycle-related injuries. Also of note, in 2016, 87 percent of bicycle deaths were those ages 20 and older.

Other interesting facts:

- * Men are six times more likely to die and four times more likely to be injured on bicycles than women.

- * Bicyclist deaths in 2016 were highest in June and lowest in February (12 percent and five percent, respectively).

- * Bicycle deaths peak during 6 p.m. and 9 p.m.

- * 51 percent of bicyclists killed in 2016 were not wearing helmets.

- * Wearing a helmet reduces chances for head injury by 50 percent.

- * Roughly 20 percent of bicycle fatalities involve a hit-and-run.

AAA Hoosier Motor Club offers the following safety tips:

- * ALWAYS wear a properly-fitted bicycle helmet.

- * Wear bright colors and reflective material on your clothing.

- * Ride with the flow of traffic and obey all traffic laws.

- * A bicyclist who is not traveling at the same speed of traffic must ride in a designated bike lane or as close as practical to the right-hand curb or edge of roadway.

- * Communicate your intentions to other road users by using appropriate hand signals.

- * Always slow down and yield to pedestrians.

- * Always stop and look left-right-left before entering the roadway.

- * If riding on the sidewalk, yield to pedestrians and cross at marked crosswalks following pedestrian crossing signals, where available.

- * When you are part of a group, ride single-file, not side-by-side.

- * Do not wear headphones or listen to music while riding because you need to hear what's going on around you.

POTLUCK MAY 10

May 10 at noon is the next Potluck in the Park program.

GET FUELED UP FOR WARMER WEATHER

(NewsUSA) - It's spring and that means it's time to take your boats, lawnmowers, classic cars and other summer gear out of the shed to get them ready for sun and fun! But before you hit the road, lawn or waves, it's important to set aside some time for preventative maintenance to make sure your summer plans don't stop short.

You'll of course want to wash and wipe off the exterior of your summer toys, but it's very important not to skip maintenance of the internal workings of your vehicles.

Despite the famous saying, "what you can't see can hurt you," this is where STA-BIL, America's no.-1-selling and trusted ethanol treatment and fuel stabilizer brand, comes in.

STA-BIL, which is celebrating its 60th anniversary, helps consumers protect their cars, boats and small engines from the inside out, keeping them running at their peak year-round.

Since fuel can go bad in as few as 30 days, using a fuel stabilizer at each fill-up can increase power and fuel efficiency while helping clean and protect your engine from the potentially harsh side effects of ethanol-blended fuel.

Think of STA-BIL as the peacekeeper that helps the fuel and water in your engine play nicely, protecting your fuel tank from corrosion and phase separation.

As consumers prepare to take their equipment out of storage for the spring, two key aspects of engine maintenance should be top-of-mind:

* Function. Fueling up at the pump is just one step in keeping your fuel tank running. Products with a proven track record, such as the lineup of STA-BIL Fuel Stabilizers, are specially formulated to treat each of your vehicles or equipment differently, whether they are on the road, in the water, or in the backyard tool shed.

If you find yourself in a bind and your engine isn't running quite right, try cleaning it, but from the inside. STA-BIL Carb & Choke Cleaner is designed specifically to help clean the engine by dissolving gum and varnish, as well as dirt and carbon deposits that keep engines from functioning at their peak. A clean engine starts more easily and runs more efficiently, which saves time and money.

* Protection. Innovations in small engine products have led to the development of pump protectors that keep components of gear-like pressure washers in good shape over long storage periods. The latest addition to the STA-BIL family, STA-BIL Pump Protector, also provides antifreeze protection and serves as a lubricant and guardian against mineral deposit buildup, which can decrease the efficiency of your pressure washer.

If your gear tends to sit out exposed to the elements, protection against rust should be a top priority. Look for a product that will protect exposed metals, like STA-BIL Rust Stopper, which is quick and easy to apply.

Internal parts need protection too, which is where a propelled oil, such as the STA-BIL Fogging Oil, can make a difference. Fogging oil is designed to help displace moisture from engine parts, protect the components, as well as lubricate them for optimum function.

FIBER: NATURE’S WAY OF MAKING YOU FEEL YOUR BEST

(NewsUSA) – Having enough daily fiber in your diet has become increasingly important because fiber helps support a smoother, more functional digestive system, provides stronger immunity, and promotes overall well-being*.

But did you know that even though you make an effort to eat healthy, you may still have trouble reaching your daily fiber requirement? Many Americans average only half of the recommended 25 to 30 grams of dietary fiber per day, according to the Academy of Nutrition & Dietetics. Yet the current average daily intake of fiber is 15 grams, as the typical diet includes many foods with high calories, such as white bread, doughnuts, sodas, juices and red meat, to name a few.

It is impractical, however, to think that you can get your daily fiber requirement from food alone, even though you can find it in edible plants, including many fruits, vegetables, grains and legumes. For example, you would need to eat about 10 apples or bananas every day to obtain your daily fiber requirement.

It’s a startling statistic that the U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates only about five percent of Americans reach the recommended level of dietary fiber requirements. An unfortunate result is a substantial burden on the health care system and on the individual health of Americans. This is known as the "fiber gap" as limited fiber intake has been associated with colon cancer and metabolic syndrome.

The "fiber gap" exists for two reasons: people think fiber supplements are primarily for maintaining a regular digestive system, and traditional forms of fiber supplements on the market, such as powder or capsules, are inconvenient to take."Dietary fiber is known for keeping our bodies regular," says Michael Epstein, M.D., FACG, AGAF, a leading gastroenterologist and Chief Medical Advisor of IM HealthScience, LLC."Most importantly, it’s essential that you get enough fiber in your diet. One way to do that is to supplement your daily intake of dietary fiber with natural, prebiotic fiber supplements. Many of my patients like the convenience and ease of taking the Fiber Choice line of chewable and gummy products."Fiber Choice – A Convenient, Prebiotic Solution.

The Fiber Choice brand of chewables and gummies is made of inulin [pronounced: in-yoo-lin], a natural fiber found in many fruits and vegetables. Inulin works by helping to build healthy, good bacteria in the colon, while keeping food moving through the digestive system. This action has a beneficial and favorable effect of softening stools and improving bowel function.

Research shows that the digestive system does more than digest food; it plays a central role in the immune system. The healthy bacteria that live in the digestive tract promote immune system function, so it’s important to nourish the body with fiber. Inulin has secondary benefits, too, of possibly lowering cholesterol, balancing blood chemistry and regulating appetite, which can help reduce calorie intake and play a supporting role in weight management.

But getting enough fiber in one’s diet can be a challenge.

So try these tips to increase the amount of fiber in your diet:

Make your grains whole. Read labels and swap out conventional grains for whole wheat when buying bread and pasta products, and choose brown rice over white.

Make your veggies green. Green vegetables, including beans, spinach, cabbage, and asparagus are good sources of dietary fiber.

Go bananas. Many types of fruit are high in fiber, but bananas are an especially rich source. Add mashed bananas to muffins, smoothies, or a bowl of oatmeal as a way to increase fiber intake.

Add a supplement. Sometimes eating enough fiber-rich foods is a challenge. So choose a dietary fiber supplement with prebiotic effects, such as the fiber found in Fiber Choice, which has been designed to promote the same health benefits as the fiber found naturally in foods.

Fiber Choice chewables or gummies are gluten-free, sugar-free, and taste great in several fruity flavors – and they are easy and convenient to take anywhere and anytime. Among all other fiber products on the market, only Fiber Choice gummies contain pectin, which is derived principally from citrus and apples. For more information about the benefits of dietary fiber and how fiber supplements can be part of a healthy eating plan, visit www.fiberchoice.com.

The usual adult dosage with Fiber Choice Chewable tablets is two tablets up to three times a day and for Fiber Choice Fiber Gummies is two gummies up to six per day.

The product is available in major retailers, such as CVS/pharmacy, Walmart, Target, and many grocery stores, and can also be purchased online at Amazon.

day-to-day life, whether it's playing with the kids, tackling your to-do list or simply relaxing. Here are three tips to help tackle some of the dirtiest places in and around your home.

Wash your windows

You'll be surprised how dirty your windows have gotten and how much brighter your home, and outlook, will feel once they are clean. First, remove the screens and use a vacuum's extendable attachment to remove the loose gunk and dust. Then, wash with soapy water and a firm brush, rinse with a hose and let air dry. For especially dirty windows, first clean with soapy water, then move on to an even mix of water and white vinegar. While using a lint-free towel or cloth will help avoid streaks, a car windshield squeegee is the expert choice.

Tackle indoor surfaces

It's important to make sure guests at your next get-together experience a clean and healthy home - but a full vacuum bag or clogged filter can reduce suction, leaving the dirt, dust and allergens that build up on many surfaces behind. For an ideal clean, make sure your vacuum is at its peak performance by replacing bags and filters. Arm & Hammer Premium Allergen bags and HEPA filters are designed to capture allergens, and need to be replaced every one to two months for bags and every three to six months for filters. If you have pets, use Arm & Hammer Pet Fresh Dry Carpet and Carpet and Upholstery Extractor Cleaners to neutralize pet odors and break down lingering stains.

Spruce up outdoors

Winter weather and activities can take a toll on the finishes and surfaces outside your home. Cleaning a few key areas will refresh your home's look and feel as you spend more time enjoying your outdoor spaces for birthday parties, barbecues and more:

* Siding: No need to get complicated - first, rinse with a garden hose, then scrub the dirty areas with a brush and soapy water and rinse again. Make sure to avoid chlorine-based bleaches to keep surrounding plants healthy.

* Driveway and garage: First, soak up oil, stains and other nasty winter reminders by spreading a drying material, such as sawdust, on the stain. Leave it for one day before scrubbing with soap and water. A power washer can be used for particularly tough stains.

* Grill/barbecue: For gas grills, make sure the propane is disconnected. Then, soak the grates in hot soapy water and rinse. Scrub thoroughly under the hood and on the inside walls with a hard brush, first covering the heating elements, to get rid of grease and particles from last year. Wipe down with a damp towel.

With these tips, you are ready for a clean, healthy (and fun) season. For more tips, visit www.armhammervac.com.

WEAR A POPPY THIS NATIONAL POPPY DAY

(BPT) - For many Americans, it starts with wearing the poppy on National Poppy Day, an annual tribute to the price of freedom. This year, National Poppy Day is May 25.

For Ann Fournier, it starts with a train ride. She has taken the same train at 5 a.m. and 4:50 p.m. daily for 30 years. She spends her hour-long commutes piecing together tiny petals of red crepe paper to assemble poppies to support veterans.

Fournier's work has made her a symbol on the train. Known as the "Poppy Lady," she has created 100,000 poppies each year over several decades. Her commitment began as a tribute to her brothers, who served during Vietnam, but has continued as a way to honor each veteran and civilian she has met on her ride to the American Legion Auxiliary (ALA) state headquarters in Boston.

"The conductor saves a seat with a table for me every day," says Fournier, who serves as ALA Department of Massachusetts secretary/executive director. "He's a veteran as well. Sometimes he sits with me to help. Sometimes strangers ask me what I'm doing. But the best moments happen when a veteran sits down or thanks me. I don't do it for the thanks; I do it because I can, and these little red flowers are a way to help those in need. Our veterans don't get enough of anything."

The red poppy holds great meaning for veterans all over the world. After the battles of World War I, the blood-red poppy flourished in France and Belgium when battlefields became burial grounds. The red flowers suddenly bloomed among the newly dug gravesites of fallen service members, turning the new graveyards into fields of red. Today, the poppy is a symbol of sacrifices made from WWI to today's war on terror.

Millions of people worldwide wear the red poppy as a call to honor living veterans and those who lost their lives. The tradition can be traced back to 1918 when Moina Michael popularized the idea of wearing a poppy flower in memory of the military lives lost in WWI. She drew inspiration from the poem In Flanders Fields, written by WWI Col. John McCrae as he gazed at the rows and rows of graves where his comrades had been recently buried. In the decades that followed, poppies have been worn, displayed and distributed for fundraising efforts for veterans service organizations around the world.

The American Legion Family is the driving force behind the now trademarked National Poppy Day because of its support for veterans and long-standing connection to the poppy flower. In the early 1920s, the Legion Family adopted the poppy as its official memorial flower to pay homage to the battlefields of WWI. Now, it is the Family's mission to support the military community by promoting the significance of the flower and the meaning behind it.

Members and volunteers connected to the ALA, one of the nation's most prominent supporters of veterans' rights, leverage the poppy in service to the veteran community through Poppy Day distributions and outreach. ALA volunteers hand out red paper or fabric poppies in exchange for donations that go directly to support veterans. Many of those poppies are made by hospitalized and disabled veterans as a form of rehabilitation and a source of income through this ALA program. In 2017, ALA members throughout the U.S. distributed nearly 6 million poppies or poppy items and raised $3.9 million in donations that went directly to help veterans, military and their families.

"This flower is personal to me," says Fournier. "Because of it, I've been able to share stories about our veterans and the ALA's work. I've also been able to explain that helping a veteran can be as simple as donating money in exchange for a poppy or as committed as making 100,000 poppies each year. It's about what you can do to help."

Donning a poppy this National Poppy Day and every day is one simple way to show gratitude for a community that has given its lives to protect ours. To learn more, visit
