NURSING PROGRAM

The Indiana State Board of Nursing has approved Huntington University's application to begin offering a Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree program in the fall of 2007.

"Nursing will be a very strategic addition to our academic programs and will expand our ability to educate students to impact the world for Christ," said Dr. G. Blair Dowden, president of Huntington University.

This state approval process involved providing extensive evidence of the appropriateness of the curriculum, the faculty, the nursing director and resources to support the program.

"I want to congratulate Dr. Pat

Pierce, who authored our lengthy application to the State Board of Nursing and has worked tirelessly to lay the groundwork for our nursing program," Dowden said.

Pierce is the university's interim director of nursing. In January, Huntington announced that Margaret Winter had been hired as the director of the Department of Nursing.

Next, the university will seek professional accreditation for the new program from the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education. CCNE is an independent accrediting agency recognized by the U.S. Secretary of Education as a national accreditation agency. CCNE assesses baccalaureate and graduate nursing programs.

Meanwhile, construction on the university's nursing facilities will be completed in the coming weeks. The program will be housed in the lower level of the state-of-the-art, 93,000 square foot Science Hall. Equipment and supplies will be moved in before classes begin in the fall.

For more information about the nursing program, log on to www.huntington.edu/nursing.

3RD GRADE AG DAY

They will also learn how much of every dollar spent to buy a box of cereal actually gets into the farmer's pocket for his share of the profit. There are sessions that will talk about soil conservation, popcorn and food safety also. They'll also get a chance to see some of the machinery that farmer's use and learn a little bit about their cost and how to safely work with this

THE UPTOWN GARDENER

by Ruth Herring

Our lovely spring weather has left us for a while, but this is Indiana and it will return. Even as I look outside I can see that it is not far away. The trees have buds swelling and on the south side of our house I will soon have daffodils blooming. Crocus are already showing their bright sunny blooms.

I have enjoyed seeing the robins searching for worms in the lawn and garden and the cardinals are singing their song from the very tops of the trees. The sights and sounds of spring are things I enjoy.

On last Saturday, St. Patrick's Day, I cleaned off a spot in the garden close to the garage and planted some peas. Some years ago it was either Wayne's Mother or his Aunt Rena Nash said they planted peas on that day often times it was in the snow. So now I try to do it also each year. Some of you may recall his Aunt Rena being part of the Nash grocery that was at the end of Nancy Street and what a nice clean and friendly store they had. There were several small neighborhood grocery stores in the Warren area and was a great part of the community. You could stop by any of them on most any day and get supplies needed and also all the current news of the community. They are now all long gone as well as the kind people who owned them and gave willing their services to the community.

Wouldn't it be nice to be able once again to walk to a neighborhood store or maybe ride your bike or put the kids in the ole red wagon and take them to get what was needed or maybe even to just stop by to say hello and share a special treat and catch up on the local news.

I'm sure many of us can reflect back to many times such as I have mentioned. I have lived here about 50 years and enjoy listening to stories told about those great people who played an important part in our community.

In closing I would like to wish my husband Wayne HAPPY 73rd BIRTHDAY and for putting up with me for 45 years. To all of you Happy Spring and Happy Memories. Couldn't decide upon a recipe this time so will share how I make my pancake and waffle syrup that the kids and grandkids all like. I use about 3/4 cup granulated sugar and 1/4 cup brown sugar 1 heaping tablespoon cornstarch 2 cups water 1 teaspoon vanilla and 1 tablespoon butter. Bring to boiling until thickened. Sometimes I add fruit such as blueberries, diced apples or strawberries when it starts to thicken.

equipment.

American agriculture is doing such an efficient job that each American farmer feeds about 144 people. U.S. consumers spend roughly 10 percent of their income on food, compared with 22 percent in the United Kingdom, 26 percent in Japan, 28 percent in South African and 51 percent in India. U.S. Farmers account for 46 percent of the world's soybean production, 41 percent of the world's corn production, 20.5 percent of the world's cotton production and 13 percent of the world's wheat production.

American Farmers are working harder than ever and doing it more efficiently. Nearly 22 million people are employed in farm, or farm-related jobs. It's not just the farmer who makes our food possible. The entire agricultural industry, all the way to the grocery store, are vital links in a chain that brings food to every U.S. citizen - and millions of people abroad. We rely on agriculture not only for food and clothing, but every product we need and enjoy, including medications, eventually is traced back to an agricultural product. We rely on agriculture for the very necessities of life.

The public and home schooled students are invited to stop by. Half of Huntington County's third grade students will go through the 14 stations between 9:30 and 11:30. The office hours are 8-4:30 pm.

This is a cooperative effort of your Huntington County Purdue Cooperative Extension Office and over 40 professionals volunteering their time and sharing their expertise.

The public is invited to the Warren Area Community Good Friday Service, to be held at the Warren Church of Christ, 3rd & Wayne Sts. in downtown Warren, April 6, at 7:00 P.M.. There will be worship through singing, scripture reading, prayer, a special community choir and a message given by Pastor Kathy Kewton of the Jefferson Center United Methodist Church. A video clip from the gospel of Matthew will visualize that terrible, yet sacrificial event that took place to demonstrate God's love for each of us. We will also share the exciting united effort the WAMA churches are participating in concerning a project to translate the Bible into the language of an unreached people group in Mexico. Let's get together to worship and remember our Lord and what He did for us on the cross.

FOREVER STAMP

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — A new Forever Stamp, shape-based pricing and a two-cent price increase for First-Class letters are some of the changes U.S. Postal Service customers will see beginning May 14, according to the Warren Postmaster.

The Forever Stamp will sell at the new 41 cent First-Class Mail one-ounce letter rate. The value on these stamps will always be the one-ounce letter rate and can be used for any future one-ounce letter mailing without extra postage.

"This new stamp is a consumer innovation that delivers convenience and value," said Warren Postmaster Stephanie Bauman. "It will help ease the transition for mailing letters when prices change."

The Forever Stamp will be good at the current price for mailing a typical one-ounce First-Class letter—forever—regardless of future rate increases.

"We will have it on sale about a month before rates change to 41 cents," Bauman said.

The Forever Stamp will be available a number of different ways. These include sheets of 18 in Automated Teller Machines, booklets of 20 at usps.com, by calling 1-800-STAMP-24, through Post Office vending machines and Automated Postal Centers, and in Post Office lobbies nationwide.

The Postal Service will also continue to honor the people, places and events that have shaped our country through the highly popular commemorative stamp program.

The Forever Stamp should not impact this popular program, the Warren Postmaster added.

Customers can also purchase two-cent Navajo jewelry stamps now to use with their 39-cents when rates change.

The new prices also reflect differences in the costs of handling letters, large envelopes and packages. Mailers are encouraged to consider options available to reduce postage costs.

For example, if the contents of a First-Class large envelope are folded and placed in a letter-sized envelope, mailers can reduce postage by as much as 39 cents per piece.

Not all prices are going up either, Bauman said. For letters over one ounce, the new prices are actually lower than the current price.

For example, the cost to mail a 2-ounce wedding invitation is going from the current rate of 63 cents to 58 cents.

The cost for the Postal Service to operate, like any other business, continues to rise, according to Al Eakle, a spokesman for the Greater Indiana District of the U.S. Postal Service. The Postal Service receives no tax dollars for operations and relies solely on the sale of its products and services to cover all operating costs. This is the first increase to cover operational expenses since 2002.

"As one of the nation's largest transportation and delivery organizations," he said, "we're extremely sensitive to rising energy costs."

Also, like other businesses, the Postal Service has experienced significant growth in health benefit payments for its nearly 700,000 career employees.

NEW KIDS EQUIPMENT

Each of Parkview Huntington Hospital's five ambulances are now equipped with new equipment to help EMTs and paramedics respond to the emergency needs of children, thanks to the generosity of two local Kiwanis service clubs, Huntington Metro Kiwanis and Kiwanis of Huntington.

The Kiwanis service clubs donated a total of $1,950 to purchase five new pediatric bags and the medical equipment stored in each bag.

Inside each bright red bag are seven color-coded kits and a wide Broselow pediatric resuscitation measuring tape. The tape, which itself is color coded to correspond to the different color kits, is used to measure the child from the head down. Whichever color on the strip reaches the bottom of the child's foot determines the color of kit to use to treat the child. On each colored panel on the measuring tape, treatment information is provided that corresponds to the length and weight of the child.

"The color coding makes it easy for us to determine and access what we need," said Penny White, a paramedic for Parkview Huntington at its Warren, Ind., station.

Kiwanis International's Indiana District began the program three years ago, and local Kiwanians Jim and Rita Dinius, both members of Huntington Metro Kiwanis, were responsible for introducing the program to their club as well as Kiwanis of Huntington.

"As local Kiwanians, we are happy to help the children of Huntington County through this program," said Rita Dinius, secretary-treasurer for Huntington Metro Kiwanis.

"We are very grateful for the generosity of Huntington Metro Kiwanis and Kiwanis of Huntington," said Darlene Garrett, Parkview Huntington Hospital COO. "That these organizations care enough about the welfare of our children to make this substantial donation says volumes about the integrity of Huntington County's Kiwanis members."

Kiwanis International is a service organization of more than 600,000 community members in 96 countries who support children and young adults around the world. Huntington Metro Kiwanis is Huntington County's evening club, which meets at the Habecker Dining Commons at Huntington University on Monday at 5:45 p.m., and Huntington Kiwanis is the noon club, which meets on Thursday at the North Star Civic Center in Huntington.

TURN AROUND, DON'T DROWN

March 19-23 is National Flood Awareness Week

The Indiana Department of Transportation (INDOT) is participating in National Flood Awareness Week by reminding motorists to "Turn Around, Don't Drown" when they encounter flooded roadways.

National Flood Awareness Week is March 19-23, 2007. This important annual campaign raises awareness about the serious dangers of flooding. Flash flooding is the leading cause of weather-related death in the United States, killing nearly 200 people a year. More than half of these deaths are vehicle-related.

Few motorists realize the serious dangers posed by just a few inches of water. Most cars can be swept away in 18-24 inches of moving water, and trucks and SUVs do not fare much better. Many people believe their 3,000-pound vehicle will remain in contact with the road surface when driving through flood waters, but this isn't the case.

Once swept away, a vehicle will often roll to one side or flip over entirely. The driver and passengers will have only a few seconds to escape their vehicle. The few motorists that do escape are often swept away by flood waters, pinned against objects or overcome by hypothermia. Even the strongest swimmers do not fare well fully-clothed in swiftly flowing water.

Even roads you are familiar with can become deadly in an instant during flooding. The water may be much deeper than it appears because the road bed may be washed out. Drivers should be especially cautious of flooding at night, when it is harder to recognize flood dangers.

Most flood-related deaths can be prevented with this simple advice: Turn Around, Don't Drown. Here are other important safety tips to remember during flooding:

- Never drive through flooded roadways
- Never drive around the barriers warning that a road is flooded
- If your vehicle stalls in flood water, leave it immediately and get to higher ground. Water only two-feet deep can cause most vehicles to float away.
- During flooding, monitor the weather conditions with a radio or tune into your local news
- If flooding occurs, get to higher ground
- During a storm, resist the normal urge to rush home immediately; staying where you are is often the safest alternative. You won't know how bad things are until it's too late.
- Do not camp or park your vehicle along streams and washes.
- Be especially cautious at night when it is harder to recognize flood dangers.

LEADERSHIP SERIES

We all want our communities to be strong, vibrant and great places to live, work and play. This does not happen by chance. It takes the work of committed, caring citizens to keep our communities strong. Elected leadership is fundamental to the success of today's communities. Supporting today's elected officials and preparing the next generation of leadership is the emphasis of a new leadership series being offered in the Huntington area.

Hosted by the Huntington County Purdue Extension Service, the program will meet four evenings from 6-9 p.m. on April 25, 26, May 8 and 9 at the Huntington County Court House Annex in the 2nd floor meeting room. The Huntington County Court House Annex is located at 354 N. Jefferson Street in Huntington.

The program is free and offered to all individuals who are current office holders or those who might be interested in running for office sometime in the future.

CAREERS IN AGRICULTURE

Do you want to be a farmer? If so, that is great! But if not, does that mean there is nothing in agriculture for you? Not Necessarily! Careers in agriculture can include working with animals (dogs, cats, horses, fish, or wildlife), developing new food products, discovering new uses for grain, becoming a florist, working outdoors, designing landscapes, or even being an engineer. Junior High and High School students are encouraged to come to the Careers in Agriculture program to find out what agriculture can do for them. The program will be held April 5th at 6:30pm at the Blackford Co. Fairgrounds. Please call the Extension Office by April 3rd at 348-3213 to let us know you will be coming.
