THE UPTOWN GARDENER
 by Ruth Herring

I am braving the cold and dreaming of a warm spring, and without doubt I will have many days of dreaming. So lets get this show on the road and hope time goes fast.

Each year I usually write something of Christmas past most have happy memories, but we always remember the loved ones we lost and this year we have the misfortune to have lost two family members within weeks of one another. They will be remembered in a special time. That is no doubt recalling many fun times we had over the years and there is many fun and funny things to think about.

Christmases in the past in our family we can recall many good things. One that is special to me was Our Uncle Lawrence always sent a huge box to us kids all the way from New York state and was a very exciting day when dad would bring it home from he post office, of course we had to wait till Christmas Day to know what it contained. Every year was so special but the one I cherish the most was when I got a set of doll dishes that was china and I still have them in the family. Treva is keeping them safe to pass on to her granddaughter some day. Also that year all of us kids received a nice big chalk board which now hangs in my garage with notes the grand kids have left over the years. I learned to print my name on that chalk board as well as my brother and we did many hours of home work learning our letters and numbers and many messages were left for one another. To me it has been a priceless gift.

Christmas with our girls has also left quite a few memories and I promised them I would not go into detail on the time Santa actually came to the house and threatened a certain one if she did not get her room cleaned it would be a very scanty Christmas, and also there was a time when the fireplace mantel came off the wall because of over loading the socks, and Santa is not the guilty one for that. The very best Christmas was the year we were blessed with a beautiful baby girl exactly a week before Christmas. That was a very special year. HAPPY BIRTHDAY TREVA.

Wayne and I were equally blessed a few years before with a baby girl born just a few days past Valentines Day, now why do I most often forget their birthdays, I just blame it on old age. So before I forget I wish all my readers a VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS.

I am forgoing a recipe this time, as most of us are over loaded with excess calories !

HOOSIERS ENCOURAGED TO BE AWARE OF ICE SAFETY THIS WINTER

INDIANAPOLIS – With icy weather occurring this weekend, the Indiana Department of Homeland Security (IDHS) is reminding Hoosiers to be cautious when spending time near bodies of water and ice.

It is impossible to judge the strength of ice by its appearance, thickness, daily temperature, or snow cover alone. Ice strength is dependent on a number of factors, including water depth under the ice, water area size, water chemistry, currents, and load distribution on the ice.

Below are important reminders for ice:

- Are ice conditions safe?
- Walking on ice is not safe unless there are more than four inches of solid, clear ice.
- Vehicles should not be driven on ice. Snowmobiles and ATVs require at least five inches of solid, clear ice for travel.

· Some bodies of water include aerations systems, which create areas of water with no ice and weakened ice beyond the opening of the body of water. Check water access for indications of an operating aeration system.

If going on ice is necessary, here's what to do:

- Always prepare as if the ice may be unsafe.
- Be with an experienced professional.
- Never go near ice alone. When entering the ice, have one person stay on shore while the other enters.

· Travel a fair distance apart on the ice to create a lesser chance of ice breaking due to weight. This will also ensure the two persons cannot fall in the same break on the ice.

What to wear on the ice:

- Carry a pair of homemade ice picks tied together with a few yards of strong cord that can be used for self-rescue. Be sure they have wooden handles so if they are dropped they will float rather than sink.

· Always wear life jackets when near any bodies of water, even when they are covered in ice.

· Wear layers of non-cotton clothing. Make sure to wear gloves and a hat. Layers generally help with warmth. If someone falls in, layers may provide some additional buoyancy with trapped air. Non-cotton material will not absorb as much water and will dry out more quickly.

For more cold weather safety information, visit www.GetPrepared.in.gov.

SURVIVING THE HOLIDAYS WITH ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE

The Alzheimer's Association offers helpful tips for holiday travel and stress management

INDIANAPOLIS – While holiday celebrations are often joyous occasions, they can be challenging and stressful for the millions of families living with Alzheimer's. Long distance trips and increased travel can be overwhelming. Families and friends may be unsure of how to involve their loved one with Alzheimer's in activities.

However, with some planning and adjusted expectations, the holidays can be happy and memorable for everyone. The Alzheimer's Association offers a number of easy tips to reduce holiday stress and ensure safe travels.

Holiday Tips:
 · Make sure others know: Let guests know what to expect before they arrive, and tell them how they can help. For example, activities they can do with the person with Alzheimer's or how best to communicate with them.

· Build on traditions and memories: Take time to experiment with new traditions that might be less stressful or a better fit with your caregiving responsibilities. For example, if evening confusion and agitation are a problem, turn your holiday dinner into a holiday lunch.

· Involve the person with Alzheimer's: Depending on abilities and preferences, make sure to keep the person with Alzheimer's involved in the celebrations, such as packing cookies in tins or helping wrap gifts.

· Plan ahead: When attending a holiday party, prepare the host for special needs, such as a quiet room for the person to rest away from the noise and distractions.

Tips for Travel:
 * Stick with the familiar. Alzheimer's Association Travel to known destinations. Try to visit places that are familiar.

* Be prepared. Create an itinerary that includes details. Give copies to family members or friends. Keep a copy with you.

* Pick the right time. Travel during the time of day that is best for the person with Alzheimer's.

* Avoid layovers. If unavoidable, ask about airport escort services.

* Ask for help. Request airline personnel to help you navigate through the airport.

* Ensure a Safe Return. Changes in environment can trigger wandering. Enroll in MedicAlert® + Alzheimer's Association Safe Return®.

* Find local support. Before you go, contact the Alzheimer's Association chapter at your destination.
