MODEL DONATED TO MUSEUM

Jerry and Louise Mewhorter were guests in Warren recently to bring a scale model of the USS Salamonie to the museum.

The model was crafted by Lyle Heuer of Lake Park Iowa. Mr. Heuer served on board the USS Salamonie from 1953-1956 as a MM1 (Machinist's Mate 1st Class). His model is made from cedar wood.

Mr and Mrs Mewhorter and their guest, Marlene Thompson, all of Redwing Minnesota, were going to be visiting the area and brought the ship with them to donate to the museum. Mr. Mewhorter served aboard the ship from 1953-1956 as an EM1 (Electrician's Mate 1st Class).

This was their first chance to visit the museum and they are planning to attend next year's festival festivities.

BEHIND BARS – FOR GOOD

Many business and civic leaders throughout the Huntington County area have agreed to be "locked up for good" on Thursday, November 8th, 2007 at the "Help and Hope" Lock-Up to benefit the local services of the Muscular Dystrophy Association. These notable "jailbirds" will serve one hour of their time behind bars in MDA's mockjail between 9:00AM and 1PM to raise money for Jerry's kids. The Habecker Dining Commons on Huntington University is hosting this year's event!

Huntington County business and community leaders have been working hard to raise their $1,200 bail (the amount required to send two children to MDA summer camp) and encouraged to have fun telling everyone they are going behind bars for good! Then, on November 8th, they will be "arrested" and taken to the Habecker Dining Commons where they will have their mug shots taken, be placed behind bars and served a little 'jailhouse grub' all while networking and having fun at the "Help and Hope" Huntington County Lock-Up! The Police Department, Huntington Area Transportation, and Premier Limousine are partnering with MDA on this event to help pick up the notorious jailbirds and take them to the Habecker Dining Commons to serve their time behind bars! Therapeutic Massage Therapy will be providing massages for the jailbirds at the event! We have volunteers coming from First Farmers Bank and Trust and Markle Bank to help the day of the event!

Any jailbirds that are not able to raise their $1,200 bail prior to being "locked-up" can phone their family, friends and business associates from the Habecker Dining Commons for help raising funds on cell phones courtesy of Centennial Wireless.

Funds from the "Help and Hope" Lock-Up will allow MDA to provide services for clients in the Huntington County area by supporting:

- the local MDA clinic at Lutheran Hospital in Fort Wayne
- the purchase and repair of wheelchairs and leg braces
- annual summer camp for youngsters with muscular dystrophy
- support groups and seminars

- MDA's lifesaving mission of research for causes and cures
- The Muscular Dystrophy Association is a national voluntary health agency dedicated to the cure and treatment of 43 neuromuscular diseases. For more information regarding the Huntington County Lock-Up, call the Northeast Indiana MDA Office at (260) 486.6698. To learn more about MDA, visit www.mda.org.

VETERAN'S DAY PROGRAM

The annual Veteran's Day Program presented by the 8th grade students at Salamonie School will be on Friday, Nov. 9th at 2:30 in the school gym. The program is presented for students in grades 1 - 8. Parents are welcome to attend. We would especially like to invite any local veterans to attend the program and be recognized for their service to our Country.

WHAT IS VETERAN'S DAY ALL ABOUT?

Veterans Day honors men and women who have served in the United States armed services. Veterans Day is a legal federal holiday in the United States. It is celebrated on November 11th. The United Kingdom celebrates November 11 as Armistice Day. It is not a legal holiday, but special observances celebrate the armistice that ended World War I on Nov. 11, 1918. Canada has a legal holiday called Remembrance Day that is celebrated on November 11. Veterans Day celebrations in the United States include parades and speeches. Special services are held at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery in Arlington, Virginia, on Veterans Day.

In 1919, President Woodrow Wilson proclaimed November 11 as Armistice Day to remind Americans of the tragedies of war. A 1938 law made the day a federal holiday. In 1954, Congress changed the holiday's name to Veterans Day to honor all United States veterans.

The date was chosen by General John Joseph "Blackjack" Pershing and the following explains how:

The complete story of General Pershing's forethought and devotion to our country and our Order that has made it, and us, an important part of the history of our nation and the world forever.

Born on Sept. 13, 1860, in Laclede, MO, John Joseph "Blackjack" Pershing was initiated into El Paso, TX, Lodge No. 187 in 1888 (Lodge at Mexican border while Pershing was stationed there).

Following his graduation from West Point in 1886, his rise through the ranks was meteoric based on numerous successful campaigns in Arizona, Mexico and the Philippines, and on June 9, 1917, Brigadier General Pershing arrived in England as the Presidentially-appointed Commander in Chief of the U.S. Expeditionary Forces for the European theater of WW I. In return for his subsequent victories, President Wilson granted him the right to choose the specific time for the Armistice, and as loyal and upright Elk, Pershing chose the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month in 1918; an Elk imprint on the U.S. and the World which has lasted to the present, although the current legislature is considering moving Veterans Day (the modern descendant of Armistice Day) away from November 11th, much to the dislike of Elks everywhere.

After the close of WW I, Pershing was raised by Congress in 1919 to the unique and highest rank only once before bestowed (on George Washington) - General of the Armies. The title was retired and never granted again in modern history when Pershing retired from active duty in 1941. He was a dedicated Elk- and visited Lodges whenever time permitted where he was rightfully given celebrity treatment, especially the banquet thrown by New York Lodge No. 1 on his triumphant return to the Big Apple in 1918. He remained an Elk continuously until his death on July 15, 1948.

MAILBOX VS. COMBINE

On Friday night, November 2nd, between 8 and 9 p.m., approximately, a red combine took out our mailbox. (We think it was a Massey-Ferguson – not sure). Paul & Jason passed the combine at Blackcreek Bridge as it was headed toward Warren.

We know it was an accident and you may not even know you hit it, but we have to replace the mailbox. Please contact us.

THE UPTOWN GARDENER

by Ruth Herring

My time in the garden has nearly come to a complete stop and I guess I am ready to put it to bed for another year. I still have some flowers to trim back and maybe bring in a few more geraniums. The strawberry bed needs trimmed and soon as it freezes I will cover it with some mulch. Strawberries is one thing that we really like fresh and don't care for them frozen. So we make the most of them while in season and make few jars of strawberry preserves to have thru the winter. It tastes good on ice cream. If you like a good flavor strawberry, the wild ones are the best. I use to always go to the fields with my dad to help him and if he didn't need me for a while I would pick the strawberries along the fence row. I always made sure I had a container to put some in. They were really nice size for wild ones. Dad said maybe the fertilizer we put on the field drifted that way to help them along also the soil was sandy in that area. What ever it was they were sure tasty. Soon the holidays will be upon us and time to be thinking of menus for the holidays. So much good food will be on the tables in homes and families enjoying the company of one another.

Our family will be celebrating Thanksgiving this weekend as some have plans to be out of state during the holiday. To me it doesn't matter when you celebrate, it is the being together with family.

Here is an easy way to fix the turkey unless you plan to make stuffing and bake it the traditional way.

Honey Glazed Turkey

1/2 cup honey, 1/2 cup Dijon mustard, 1 1/2 teaspoon dried rosemary crushed, 1 teaspoon onion powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder, 1/4 teaspoon pepper. Mix this all together and place the well rinsed turkey in a roasting bag, pour the glaze over it coating it well and bake according to the directions on the bag for the proper size turkey. Happy Holidays to each of you from the Uptown Gardener.

This group is mainly just a fun group to share our love of these wonderful creatures with ourselves and maybe the community. ### MY TOWN and Yours BY DENNIS STROUD

Back in 1900, at the Post Office corner was the tailor shop of A. VanDolsen and next door to him was Ira Brown of H. Brown & Son. Farther east on the south side of First Street was a blacksmith shop run by Gillette Webb. Around 1903, Mr. Webb and his son, Clyde, built one of the first automobiles ever owned by a Warren man. The story goes how proud the owner was when he drove the car clear to Murray and back in one day without having to stop to make repairs. Down where Ackley's Automotive is, Phillip Smethurst had a flour mill. The mill was erected in 1867 and was powered by steam. In the early 1900s, the mill was destroyed by fire.

Going back west on First Street, the first business you came to was the Roeme Saloon. The saloon was in the old Eckman building on the corner. Next door was the Warren News office with Mr. Surran as editor. Mr. Surran printed the first newspaper in Warren back in 1879. In 1902, Monroe Wiley bought the Warren News and closed the office. Mr. Wiley owned the Warren Tribune at the time and ran it for many years. Next to the Warren News office Riley Andrew's blacksmith shop and beside him was Jack Crabb's Saloon. The saloon was about where the East of Chicago Pizza is now.

On the corner of First and Wayne Streets, where Warren Service and Supply's parking lot is, stood a three story framed building in which Kriegbaum Brothers started business. In later years, Kriegbaums moved a couple of buildings north and Mr. Turner moved into the three story building and ran Sanitary Market.

The other day an Olin Clark painting was donated to the Salamonie Valley Museum. C. Olin Clark lived in Warren at the turn of the century and graduated from high school here in 1910. He became an artist and studied in Paris for several years. He returned to Warren for a few years in the 1930s and continued his painting career.

The painting mentioned is a 12 inch by 19 inch watercolor which he painted in Paris in 1920. It has no title, but appears to be a portrayal of a group of Parisians chatting together in an art gallery, in a party atmosphere. Although the painting is 87 years old, the vibrant colors which are typical of Clark's work, is still vivid.

The framed picture was donated by Mr. Daniel Evans of rural Huntington, who acquired it many years ago, from Ethel Click, who was a well-known art teacher at Warren High School until her retirement in 1965. It is Mr. Evans desire that the painting be exhibited in commemoration of Ethel Click.

Bill Cosby has been making America laugh for decades with his keen insight to human behavior. His outstanding career began in the 1960s with standup comedy and has continued as a television actor and author.

He has spawned a string of best-selling comedy albums, which have gone on to win eight Gold Records, five Platinum records and five Grammy Awards. His role on TV's I Spy made him the first African-American to co-star in a dramatic series, breaking television's racial barrier and winning three Emmy Awards. In the 1980s, he again rocked the television world with The Cosby Show, a gentle, whimsical and hugely successful series that single-handedly revived the family sitcom. With hit movies like Uptown Saturday Night and books like Fatherhood and Come On People (which was released Oct. 9), Bill Cosby is quite simply a national treasure.

DIAGNOSING DYSLEXIA

If you boarded an airplane and learned that the pilot is dyslexic, would you be nervous? No need to be if you also learned he is a graduate of the Pinnacle School in Bloomington.

The school counts a commercial airline pilot among more than 300 alumni who learned how to overcome the challenges associated with dyslexia. The success of these students is ample evidence that dyslexia can be effectively addressed through specialized instruction, on one condition. Dyslexia needs to be diagnosed in the first place.

"It is really a waste, and so discouraging, for someone to go through life without being properly diagnosed and getting the help they need," said Dr. Denise Lessow, director of the Pinnacle School. "If you get a dyslexic child in early – as early as 6-years-old – you can teach that child how to read, and you can avoid the utter despair and frustration that a dyslexic child often feels in a regular classroom."

According to the Dyslexia Institute of Indiana, 15 percent to 20 percent of the nation's population has a learning disability. Of the nearly 64,000 Indiana students who have identifiable learning disabilities, as many as 80 percent could be struggling with dyslexia.

Once the condition is properly diagnosed, schools are required by federal law to develop an Individual Education Plan describing the specialized instruction the student will receive to address the learning disability.

Warning signs can surface early in life. According to research at UCLA, parents of a one-year-old should observe if their child's eyes can focus on a single object. In the second year of life, watch if your child can point with one finger, and after the second birthday, the child should be able to answer the question, "Where is..." when looking at a picture in a book.

The Learning Disabilities Association of America (LDAA)

reports that as children enter preschool and kindergarten, parents should watch for decoding errors, especially how the child orders letters. Other warning signs include a disparity between listening skills and early reading skills, difficulty recalling well-known words, and substituting one small sight word (a, I, he, the, there, was) with another.

After noticing these behaviors on a frequent and regular basis, parents should immediately talk with the child's teacher. Or if the child is struggling academically, parents should ask the teacher if a learning disability, including dyslexia, could be the cause.

According to the LDAA, most schools will first try to address the situation in a normal classroom setting. However, if improvement does not occur, parents should request that their child be tested for dyslexia and other learning disabilities. If a learning disability is revealed, the school can then develop a special education plan for the student.

The International Dyslexia Association (IDA) encourages parents to inform school officials about the child's strengths and weaknesses – not just academically, but also socially and emotionally. Parents can help teachers by informing them of the child's ability to concentrate, complete a task, follow directions and organize work.

The IDA says parents then should work with educators to set annual learning goals that are observable, measurable and concrete. And parents should stay in communication with the child's teacher to learn about progress, challenges or any changes that might need to be made in the student's learning plan.

And as the Pinnacle School demonstrates, success is possible. In fact, success is expected. Just ask Tom, whose son flunked kindergarten. Yes, kindergarten. Twice.

"We thought maybe he wasn't trying hard enough," Tom recalled, "but then we learned he is dyslexic. His teacher here at the Pinnacle School asked him about being a genius, and he said, 'How can I be a genius? I'm stupid.'"

"Now I pick him up from school, and he's telling me about King Tut and the Titanic, and he's asking me, 'And you know all that, right dad?' And I just say,

'Uh...yeah...right...I know that. And I'm glad you do, too.'

"It's just a miracle what happened to my son. Not just that he's learning, but that for the first time in his life he has enthusiasm about school."

This life-changing result is possible after proper diagnosis of dyslexia, which is why Lessow advises parents, "Don't lose valuable time getting your child the help that's needed. The sooner we work with dyslexic children, the better."

100TH BIRTHDAY

Former Warren teacher Deloris M. Fleck celebrated her 100th birthday Sunday, November 11, at Heritage Pointe, where she has lived since August 1994.

She was born at home on November 11, 1907, daughter of Lewis Mitchell Morrison and Martha Caroline Dolby. The Morrison farmhouse still stands at 11624 South Hartford City Road, in Salamonie Township on Indiana State Road 218 East.

After attending the Zent elementary school, Deloris entered Warren High School, graduating in 1925. She completed the two-year teacher preparation course of the Indiana State Normal School at Muncie, now Ball State University, in 1927, and received an Indiana lifetime teacher's license in 1932. Manchester College awarded her the B.S. degree in 1964.

Deloris spent most of her quarter-century career in education as a Hoosier fourth-grade teacher. She taught elementary school at Warren from 1927 to 1932, and at the Washington Center school in Whitley County from 1932 to 1933. She returned to elementary teaching when her children were growing up, teaching at South Whitley from 1951 to 1955, at Ligonier from 1955 to 1959, and at the Thorncreek Township school in Whitley County from 1959 until her retirement in 1970.

She married Ford Bloom Fleck on June 6, 1933. Mr. Fleck, a science teacher at Warren, South Whitley, Ligonier and Columbia City, died on July 2, 1983.

A Past Matron in the Order of the Eastern Star, she is a member of the First Presbyterian Church in Columbia City, the Indiana Retired Teachers Association and the Tri-Lakes Garden Club.

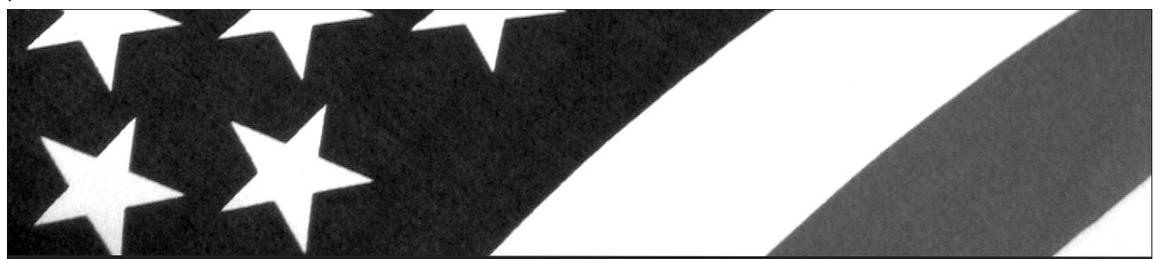

Deloris has two living children, George Fleck, Williamsburg, Massachusetts, and Carolyn Javelian, Wilmette, Illinois; ten grandchildren; seventeen great-grandchildren; and one great-great-grandchild. Two children, Monica Coutant and John Fleck, have died, as have two sisters (Lucille Dunwoody and Mary Pendleton), a brother (Samuel Morrison), four half-sisters (Sarah Moore, Carrie Foust, Ruth King and Lulu Miller) and six half-brothers (Vance Payne, Marion Payne, Leander Morrison, Leon Morrison, Raymond Morrison and Virgil Morrison).
