SPECKS CAUSE CONCERN

When Jack Sutton noticed a dense cloud of tiny black specks along his frontage at Yellow Creek Lake in mid-May, he thought it was the start of another algae bloom on the surface of the 151-acre natural lake in southern Kosciusko County.

But these specks were different. Turns out they weren't even plants.

They were daphnia eggs, what biologists call ephippia.

Daphnia are microscopic animals that are a favorite food of small fish. They feed on algae and are a natural part of the aquatic food chain.

Daphnia can produce large numbers of ephippia in the spring when the water is clear, often when adult populations are most dense.

"I was looking outside my window and saw what looked like a film on the water," Sutton said. "I've been here for 40 years and never seen anything like it."

Sutton grabbed a water sample and contacted DNR biologist Jed Pearson.

Like Sutton, Pearson had no clue what the tiny specks were.

GRAY INDUCTED

Twenty-five students, two alumni and one faculty member were inducted into the Eckerd College chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, the nation's most prestigious honor society, during a ceremony on May 15 in St. Petersburg Florida.

Founded in 1776, Phi Beta Kappa is this nation's oldest society for recognition of academic excellence and scholarly achievement. A distinction granted to only 280 colleges and universities nationwide, the Zeta Chapter of Florida was granted to Eckerd College at the 40th Council in 2003.

Students do not apply for membership but are selected during the spring semester each year by the Phi Beta Kappa chapter as a whole, after a careful review of the academic records of each eligible candidate. While members are generally elected in their senior year, the chapter may elect deserving juniors as well.

One of five juniors selected was Dylan Gray of Uniondale. Gray is a 2011 graduate of Huntington North High School and will be a senior at Eckerd next year majoring in Psychology and Sociology. Gray was selected as a Peter Pav Scholar his freshman year at Eckerd and at the end of his sophomore year was selected as a Ford Scholar for his junior and senior years.

Dylan is the son of Michael Gray, Ft. Wayne and Chris Droke, Uniondale.

DISPLAYING THE FLAG

There can be confusion and questions about how to properly wear and display the American flag, especially around the summer holidays of Memorial Day, Flag Day (June 14th) and July 4th when many people want to display a flag.

Here is what the law says about using the American flag properly:

- The flag should never touch anything beneath it, such as the ground, the floor, water or merchandise.
- The flag should never be used as wearing apparel, bedding or drapery. It should never be festooned, drawn back, nor up, in folds, but always allowed to fall free.
- No part of the flag should ever be used as a costume or athletic uniform.
- The flag should never be used as a receptacle for receiving, holding, carrying or delivering anything.
- The flag should never be carried flat or horizontally, but always aloft and free.
- The flag should not be draped over the hood, top, sides or back of a vehicle or of a railroad train or a boat.

Read more rules and regulations that govern flag display at <http://www.senate.gov/reference/resources/pdf/RL30243.pdf>

FOSTERS NEEDED

The Indiana Department of Child Services (DCS) is always looking for adults with a strong desire to invest in the future. These visionary foster parents are selfless caregivers willing to provide temporary supervision and stability for children during a challenging time in the children's lives. May is National Foster Care Month and because of this heightened awareness, an informational open house for prospective foster parents in Gibson, Knox, Pike, Posey, Vanderburgh and Warrick Counties will take place on Tuesday, May 13 in Evansville.

"When it is not safe for a child to stay in his or her own home, the first place we look is the home of a nearby relative that may be able to care for the child," said Samantha Freeman, a foster care regional supervisor for DCS. "But when that option is not available, we need to have good foster families ready and willing to provide temporary care for our children in need."

Foster parents can be stay-at-home parents or they can work outside the home. They may rent or own their own house, apartment or condominium, as long as it meets safety standards. Besides providing food and shelter, they assist with practical needs like helping with visits with the child's family, taking them to any needed therapy sessions, medical and other appointments and ensuring there are extra-curricular activities.

Local foster parents are especially needed so school-age children removed from their homes can continue to attend their own school and maintain contact with their friends. Those willing to foster teenagers or sibling groups are particularly desired.

For more information about being a foster parent, visit fostercare.in.gov.

To him, they looked like little bits of pepper.

"I thought they may have been small seeds, pollen or some form of plant," Pearson said.

Back in the lab and under a microscope, the specks appeared to be encased in a clear protective covering. But Pearson still couldn't identify them.

Both came back with the same response — daphnia eggs — ehippia.

When told the specks were ehippia, Sutton's first response was: "How do you spell that?"

After hearing that daphnia are a prime food item for fish, Sutton added, "No wonder a lot of fish have been hitting the top."

Now if he can only figure out to get them on a fish hook and use them for bait.

CCC AT OUBACHE

Visitors to Ouabache State Park can learn how the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) helped develop the park during the Great Depression at a presentation on May 31.

The presentation is at 7:00 p.m. in the Trails End Shelter, which was built by the CCC. The event is free and open to the public. Standard park admission fee of $5 per in-state vehicle and $7 per out-of-state vehicle applies. The program is sponsored by the Friends of Ouabache State Park group and Ouabache State Park.

The CCC was a government work program that provided jobs to young, unemployed men during the Great Depression. The workers developed parks; built roads, trails and fire towers; planted trees and more. Many structures and trees can still be seen at Ouabache State Park.

The Friends group will show the audience historic photos and CCC memorabilia. After the presentation, participants can tour the park to view structures built by the CCC.

The Friends of Ouabache State Park group is raising funds to install a CCC statue at the park. There is currently only one statue located in Indiana, at Versailles State Park. Bluffton resident Wayne Lydy, 91, and his daughter, Myra Myrtle, Friends group president, are the driving force to get the statue. Lydy is one of the oldest surviving CCC veterans in Indiana.

For questions about the program contact Myra Myrtle at (260) 273-1686 or Jody Heaston at jheaston@dnr.IN.gov

Contributions toward the CCC statue can be made by writing a check to the Friends of Ouabache State Park with Ouabache Statue Project written in the memo. Your donation may be tax deductible.

Mail checks to: Ouabache State Park, ATTN: Friends of Ouabache State Park, 4930 E. State Road 201, Bluffton, IN 46714.

Ouabache State Park (stateparks.IN.gov/2975.htm) is at 4930 E. St. Rd. 201, Bluffton, 46714.

TIPS FOR MANAGING

STRESS IN YOUR LIFE

(StatePoint) Stress is not only unpleasant; it can be overwhelming, ultimately preventing you from solving the problems that caused the stress in the first place.

But getting focused can help you feel happier and be more successful professionally, financially and in your relationships, say experts.

"Rather than living with fear or regret, you can turn your life's most difficult challenges into the best thing that has ever happened to you," says Master DDnard, self-help guru and author of the new book, "The Compass of Now," a guide for taking control of one's life, which is already a best-seller in Thailand.

The key to reducing harmful stress in your life is to incorporate meditation into your day, stresses DDnard. She offers these tips for getting started:

- Separate yourself from your feelings: Remember that your thoughts and feelings are impermanent, so try not to be consumed by your emotions. Freeing yourself from an internal negative loop can improve your mood and have a positive effect on your external circumstances.
- Give and share: Concentrate on giving and sharing your happiness. "When you do so, you'll attract goodness, good people, and prosperity," she says.
- Focus on possibilities: A good ratio is to spend five percent of your time thinking about a problem, and the other 95 percent of your time thinking about solutions. Avoid dwelling on limitations that hold you back.

• Appreciate: Each day, set aside time to put down your electronic devices and turn off the television. Meditation can help you appreciate the world around you -- the color of the sky, the smiles of your loved ones, the warmth of your family and friends.

• Be satisfied: You can "choose" to be happy regardless of your circumstances, says DDnard. So concentrate on what you have and it being "enough," rather than on your desires that are unfulfilled. That way of thinking tends to be negative, and unhelpful toward setting and meeting goals.

More tips and advice for reducing stress can be found at www.CompassOfNow.com.

"In a society oversaturated with technology, we've lost our ability to focus," says DDnard. "But being mindful and tapping into your intuitive center can help you reach your full potential."

HELP DAD PERFECT HIS

GRILL SKILLS THIS SEASON

(StatePoint) The seasoned griller commands an arsenal of experience and recipes, all having been painstakingly passed through the generations and perfected over time and temperature. The origin of these tasty traditions usually can be found in family, and the one often deserving the credit is dear old Dad.

Southern grilling guru Fred Thompson, author of the new book "Williams-Sonoma Grill Master" a collection of back-to-basics tips and recipes, recalls the influence of his father as early as nine years old. "Every Saturday night my father grilled rib-eye steaks. I wanted to keep up with daddy so I hung out at the grill," he says. "I was fascinated with what my father could do."

This Father's Day and BBQ season, try honoring the Old Man with delicious tradition. So light that fire!

Take a page out of Thompson's book and learn the secrets to grilling the perfect steak:

- Buy good meat: Grass-fed and grass-finished beef tastes better and has a bolder flavor that holds up particularly well against the lick of the grill's flames.

- Simple seasoning: Sprinkle steak liberally on both sides with salt and pepper when you take it out of the refrigerator. Brush steaks on both sides with a little olive oil (not extra virgin). This facilitates the heat transfer, so you can get an evenly browned crust and a delicious steak house flavor.

- Timing is important: There's nothing worse than a rubbery, tasteless overcooked steak. Professionals use touch to gauge doneness, and so can you. Touch your index finger to your cheek. When the meat feels this way, the steak is rare. Touch the tip of your nose. That firmness equates to medium. Your forehead is well done. "But please don't go there," says Thompson.

- Let it rest: If you cut into a piece of beef as soon as it comes off the grill, you will lose precious juices. Give the proteins in the steak the opportunity to unwind a little bit from the heat they have just experienced. Let most steaks rest at least five to 10 minutes to give the juices time to redistribute evenly throughout the meat.

- Goes great with: Skip the steak sauce. A pat of plain or compound butter is the perfect finish.

Even experienced grillers need new tips, tools and tricks to perfect their steaks, ribs and dry rub techniques. Consider gifting dad a successful grilling season with "Grill Master." Grill tips, BBQ recipes and information about the book can be found at www.WeldonOwen.com.

"There's a mystique that happens with smoke and flame that you just can't get any way else, and it's pretty simple to create,"

says Thompson.

JUNE IS GREAT OUTDOORS MONTH: THREE TIPS TO GET GOING

(StatePoint) Summer is here, and though cooler weather activities can be a blast, many experienced outdoor adventurers and weekend warriors alike look forward to warm weather to truly rev up their engines.

Ever since 1986, each June has been affectionately referred to as "Great Outdoors Month," enticing thousands of adventurers to thaw out after a long winter and kick-start their summers with new excursions and activities. And there are plenty of great ways to get up, get out and get going.

Turn Off Your Phone

It may sound blasphemous in today's gadget-crazed world, but turning off your phone, tablet or laptop is a great way to create the impetus to go exploring.

Turning off your gadgets can help you turn on to the great outdoors -- be it through camping, fishing, rock-climbing, cycling or even just enjoying a family walk at a local park. You'll be surprised where you end up when you cast aside the GPS and steer yourself.

Gear Up

If you've grown accustomed to your climate-controlled living room, you'll need to remember that sweatpants and a tattered t-shirt aren't always sufficient in the great outdoors.

While it's easy to echo the Boy Scout motto and simply say "be prepared," you don't necessarily know where the road will take you. That's why it's always a good move to invest in some versatile clothes made from durable high-tenacity fibers and rugged tools that can help you adapt to the environment changes.

A good place to start is with a watch designed to withstand the elements, such as Casio's PRO TREK timepieces which are designed to withstand both hot and cold temperatures and are water-resistant up to 100 meters.

And the timepiece maker offers two PRO TREK models that are both equipped with a Triple Sensor which features an altimeter, barometer and compass -- which can help you navigate the twists and turns of almost any outdoor environment. Now you can pack your GPS-enabled phone away and know you won't be left without a course direction or weather alert. You'll even know how high you are when reaching your final hiking destination.

More information can be found at www.ProTrek.casio.com.

Go Play

Rule number one: Have a blast! Don't treat recreation like a chore. Remember, human beings should feel at home in nature. Don't let flat tires, broken oars, or are-we-there-yets deter you.

One more thing to remember: While June happens to be National Outdoors Month, you don't have to put your adventure gear in the attic as soon as it's over. Almost any day can be a good day to get outside and soak up some fresh air and sun or even some adventure-quenching precipitation.

LEARNING ABOUT YOUR FAMILY HISTORY IS IMPORTANT

(StatePoint) It's no wonder that genealogy is one of the most popular topics on the Internet -- family history can be fascinating, and learning more about it is an excellent vehicle for generating conversation and fostering inter-generational bonds.

Beyond creating a family tree, consider generating a more thorough narrative by conducting an oral history interview with your loved ones.

"Through an oral history, you can capture key life moments and connect the past and future," says Nancy Rogers, senior vice president of Corporate Responsibility at Lincoln Financial Group. The company is honoring the legacy of Abraham Lincoln and the 150th anniversary of the Emancipation Proclamation through its Lincoln's Legacy initiative, which includes a call for recorded oral histories conducted by Americans nation-wide.

With so much technology now available in the palm of your hand, discovering and capturing your family's history is easier than ever. From conducting research online to recording and sharing oral histories, take advantage of available tools. Here are some guidelines to make the most of the experience:

- Prepare questions, don't just wing it. You'll have a much more interesting conversation if you have a series of open-ended questions ready in advance. For example, "what historical event left the most lasting impression on your life?" Avoid yes or no questions.

- Consider your relatives' ages and what life might have been like for them during their childhood. Were their schools or neighborhoods racially diverse? Ask your grandparent or older relative to compare life today to that time.

"You may not think about it often, but Americans have not always enjoyed the freedom and opportunities they do today. Talking to older relatives about their lives and the lives of their parents and grandparents can shed light on the struggles and challenges of the past," says Allison Green, chief diversity officer at Lincoln Financial.

- Use a prop to get the conversation started, such as an old photo or a trinket. These keepsakes can inspire both questions and answers.

- Preserve your interview by recording it forever. Choose a well-lit, quiet area. Use a camcorder or a smartphone -- whatever works for you.

- Don't keep your interview to yourself. There are ways you can share it with the world. For example, Lincoln Financial Group is calling for recordings to be incorporated into an anthology of voices. To upload your conversation or learn more about the initiative, visit www.LincolnsLegacyOralHistories.com.

Everyone has an interesting story to tell and a legacy to leave. Don't let the fascinating fabric of your family history fade away undiscovered.
