NIELSEN TALKS CORN

Bob Nielsen is known in many agricultural crowds in the state as "the corn guy". He even has a license plate on his vehicle with this designation on it. Nielsen is an Extension specialist in the Department of Agronomy at Purdue. He recently gave a talk at an Extension workshop for farmers in Huntington County.

Nielsen discussed many essential corn growing decisions during his presentation. However, the decision of hybrid selection was at the top of the list. One chart in his presentation showed the range in hybrid yields in 2009 Purdue variety trials in locations across the state. He relates the difference in yields from the highest performing hybrid to the lowest performing hybrid at each location. His finding is a spread equal to $175 to $322 per acre in gross income between the highest and lowest hybrid at a $3.50 per bushel corn price.

Nielsen stresses that there is no such thing as a perfect hybrid. He notes that consistency of yield over years and across locations is based primarily on the abilities of corn hybrids to tolerate unforeseen stresses. He recommends identifying hybrids that are within 10% of the highest hybrid yield in every variety trial they are entered.

One method of identifying consistency that Nielsen mentioned is calculating relative hybrid yield performance across multiple trials. This means that your hybrid yield is divided by the highest yield in the trial. For example, if your hybrid yielded 200 bushels per acre and the top hybrid was 220 bushels per acre, then your hybrid yielded 91% relative to the maximum hybrid.

Beginning with the 2009 Purdue University trial data, the relative hybrid yield is being used as an alternative way to evaluate consistency among locations. The information can be found at the following Web site: <http://www.ag.purdue.edu/agry/PCPP>. Note that this site allows growers to compare corn hybrids or soybean varieties grown all across Indiana.

"Our goal is to provide quality, independent data for producers and companies," said Phil DeVillez, director of the Purdue Crop Performance Program (PCPP). "These test results provide farmers with a tool they can use in making their hybrid or variety selections."

The PCPP Web site is only one resource for collecting hybrid information. As any farmer will tell you, seed company sales representatives can provide valuable literature and trial data to assist in making decisions.

Nielsen summarizes wise hybrid selection by recognizing these key factors:

- * Requires a lot of research & homework.
- * Can be challenging because multiple location data are often difficult to obtain.
- * Can be challenging because yield data often require further analysis & scrutiny.
- * Can dramatically improve net income due to higher and more consistent yields for growers.

A PERFECT GAME

At Heritage Pointe on Thursday, February 18, Ralph Taylor broke the balls in a billard game of 8-ball, pocketing one ball, then proceeded to pocket the remainder of his seven balls, then pocketed the eight ball for a perfect game.

Fellow players in the game were Dee Fox, Kay Mounsey and Clarence Myers.

FIVE WAYS TO BREAK OUT OF A RUT

(StatePoint) It happens. You wake up one morning to find your everyday routine has become a rut. And in today's world marked by financial collapse and increasing instability, more and more people are finding the grooves of their daily lives have become seemingly endless ruts.

But with a few helpful tips and a new outlook, people everywhere can bust out of these dreaded traps.

"Most people don't realize how easy it is to replace negative habits with positive ones, and to become unstuck," says former advertising executive, Myra Janco Daniels, whose role later in life as head of a music and cultural complex helped her get out of her own rut. "After my husband died, I needed something to do. For weeks, I took long walks on the beach, wondering, 'How can I make my world a better place?' At first, I didn't know. Then I got involved with a fund-raising drive to support a local orchestra. It soon grew into an effort to establish an arts center."

In her new book, "Secrets of a Rutbuster," Daniels draws on her vast professional and life experiences to offer some helpful tips. They include:

- * Find What You Love and Do It: The only way to realize your true potential is to discover your calling and pursue it passionately.
- * Get Lost: What better way to recharge your batteries and start fresh than to take a break and let your subconscious mind wander? Getting lost is often the best way of really finding ourselves.
- * Master the Art of Giving: Whether a kind word or a charitable donation, the long, lost practice of giving creates positive energy that ultimately makes us feel good about ourselves.
- * Go Back to School: An emerging trend in the midst of the global recession, Daniels calls this "one of the most important qualities of 'rutbusting.'"
- * Surround Yourself with Teachers: Let's face it. You don't know everything. Acknowledge that by associating with people whose areas of expertise are different from yours.

Daniels could certainly be considered among those teachers. Her late husband, Draper Daniels, was the inspiration for "Mad Men's" Don Draper and she herself was among advertising's most-accomplished women over three decades.

Whatever your personal rut, simply by making some easy changes in your life, you can make it a thing of the past.

*Please don't take your organs to heaven ...
Heaven knows we need 'em here!!*

one block the procession will turn left at Meridian and head south to Monument Circle. There the parade will turn right and make its way around the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument before continuing south down Meridian. The route will then make a left on Georgia, where it will end its mile-long march on Pennsylvania in front of Conseco Fieldhouse.

At Conseco Fieldhouse, viewers will salute and cheer on celebrity players and coaches as they exit the parade and walk the 100 Year Celebration Red Carpet to an honorary Indiana Legends Reception. Following the conclusion of the parade, the IHSAA evening session state finals will begin at 6 p.m. Ticket quantities are limited and may be purchased in advance at www.ihsaa.org or at any school participating in the finals.

"For former players and fans alike, the 100th Anniversary Celebration Parade will bring back memories of parading the championship trophy proudly around Monument Circle or their community after winning the state title," said IHSAA Commissioner Blake Ress. "We believe this will be an exciting conclusion to our 100-day celebration of Hoosier Hysteria and encourage everyone to come out and show support for their championship teams."

Players and coaches of state championship teams who would like to participate in the parade may contact the Celebration Parade Committee by calling 317-863-2575 or emailing info@100n100.net. Additional information about the parade and the "100 Years IN 100 Days" Celebration can be found at www.100YearsIN100Days.net.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Completing a bachelor's degree just became more affordable for graduates of Indiana's Ivy Tech Community College, thanks to a new agreement with Western Governors University, www.wgu.edu. Under the terms of the agreement, Ivy Tech graduates who have completed their associate degrees are eligible for an application fee waiver, a 5 percent discount on WGU's already-affordable tuition, and a generous transfer policy. In addition, the online, competency-based university is earmarking ten scholarships valued at up to $2,000 each for qualified Ivy Tech grads.

Western Governors University is a private, non-profit university designed for working adults who are committed to advancing their careers by completing a bachelor's or master's degree. Its online, competency-based approach is both flexible and challenging. WGU offers more than 50 degree programs in high-demand career fields, all designed by industry experts to meet the needs of employers.

Tuition at WGU is roughly the same as a state college or university, less than $5,500 per year for Ivy Tech graduates enrolling in most bachelor's degree programs. WGU's terms are six months long and can start at the beginning of any month. Because WGU uses a competency-based approach students progress in their degree programs by demonstrating their knowledge through tests and other assessments rather than logging time in class. Students who can commit extra time to their studies may be able to complete their degrees in less time, which can also save tuition costs. In addition to the scholarships for Ivy Tech grads, WGU offers a number of other scholarship programs as well as financial aid. For more information, go to http://www.wgu.edu/tuition_financial_aid/scholarships.

In addition to discounts, the Ivy Tech/WGU agreement has established a transfer policy that

The Wells County 4-H Beef AND Dairy Beef Identification Day will be held Saturday, March 6, 2010, 9 AM – 11 AM. The event will take place at the Wells County 4-H Park Multi-Purpose Arena located behind the Horse Barn.

All beef steers, dairy beef steers, and market heifers must be ear tagged, nose printed, and weighed to be eligible to show at the 2010 Wells County 4-H Fair, July 17 – 22. In addition, animals planning to be exhibited at the Indiana State Fair must be retinal eye scanned.

Commercial heifers (non-registered) will also be ear tagged, nose printed (retinal eye scanned if showing at the State Fair).

Registered heifers do not need to be brought to the ID Day. These animals will be identified by their registration papers which includes their ear tattoo number.

Official livestock enrollment forms will be available at the ID Day and may be completed there or turned in to the Extension Office by March 15, 2010.

Members who participated in the Dairy Feeder Steer Calf project are also encouraged to enroll their animals in the Dairy Beef project. These animals will exhibit in a separate show at the 4-H Fair. The Beef Show at the Wells County 4-H Fair is scheduled for Wednesday, July 21, and the Dairy Beef Show will be held Monday, July 19.

Youth may also enter a calf in the Beef Starter Class. This special class is for beef calves born after January 1st and up until June 1, 2010.

For more information about 4-H or the 4-H Beef project, contact the Wells County Office of the Purdue Cooperative Extension Service, 1240 S. 4-H Road, Bluffton, 260-824-6412 or Beef Superintendent Brian Clark, 824-0908 or Dairy Beef Superintendent Brad Thiele, 260-639-6091.

4-H ARTS & CRAFTS

Youth can participate in a wide variety of arts and craft making activities in 4-H. The project is divided into four categories that include fine arts, needlecrafts, model crafts, and any other crafts.

Projects can be made at home, school or in a community class or workshop and exhibited in 4-H at the county fair.

The fine arts category can include oil, charcoal, pastels, pencil, ink, acrylic or watercolor on canvas, canvas board or paper trimmed as a picture and prepared for hanging.

Needle craft (hand work) includes knitting, embroidery, crocheting, needlepoint, crewel, candlewicking, chicken scratching, hand quilting, tatting, huck embroidery, and hemstitching. Also pulled, drawn, and counted threadwork and punch needle work.

Model Craft includes projects such as small scale replica of cars, trucks, boats, plane, etc. Die casts are not allowed. Lego built models will exhibit in Any Other Craft.

The Any Other Craft category includes items that do not fit in Fine Arts, Needle Craft or Model Crafts. This could include latch hook, plastic canvas, machine quilting, machine knitting, ceramics, enameling, leathercraft, etching/engraving / shaping, reed craft / basket making, and woodcrafts or metalcrafts.

The 4-H program encourages exhibits from all areas and reminds members that exhibits need to be finished and ready for display. This means exhibits have a cover on the back for protection and a wire or hook for hanging.

Youth are encouraged to include a note to explain their project and how they made it or what inspired them to make it.

In Wells County, over 85 youth participated in the Arts & Crafts Project in 2009.

Youth may become 4-H members when they are in third grade and may continue their membership through grade 12 for a maximum of 10 years. (Mini 4-H members may join when they are in grades 1 & 2.) Youth interested in joining 4-H may contact the Wells County Office of the Purdue Cooperative Extension Service at 260-824-6412

OPERATING SYSTEM

OVERLOAD

by The FlyLady, Marla Cilley
Whether we like it or not we are in the computer world. As we have found out the hard way when something goes wrong with our operating system, the data we put in does not come out with the result we expected.

Let's stop trying to figure out what caused the problem and let's concentrate on the facts. It takes time to replace an operating system. Right now we have to understand its idiosyncrasies and work around them.

The first little quirk that is in our operating system is if we put too much information in, it tends to shut down and stop working. In order to work around this, all we have to do is load one thing at a time. Doesn't that sound familiar? We get overwhelmed and nothing gets done! When we focus on one habit or one thing we can trick the operating system into getting something done.

This got me to thinking using reverse psychology on myself. Whenever I have a strong urge to do something, let's say eating chocolate cake. I have given up bad carbs for lent. There is half of a chocolate cake in the kitchen. So instead of going into the kitchen to gobble down a plate full of cake, I decided to sidetrack myself.

My water bottle is full so I take a great big drink and head to the opposite end of the house to do something else for just three minutes. With a load of laundry in hand, I take it to the basement. Before I know it, that uncontrollable urge has been forgotten. This is the part of my operating system that I understand and have learned to use to my advantage. Gotta love those little quirks!

Sometimes our operating system can get us in big trouble. I am talking about our mouth and how fast we can fire off an email, instant message, text, Tweet or Facebook post. When we feel we have been wronged in some way, we are determined to defend ourselves and others. We feel like the protectors of all. This calls for some more sidetrackery! I love making up new words to describe our operating systems.

This is the hardest urge of all to fight and we can do it. When you feel that overwhelming response spilling out of your fingertips, grab a pen and paper and not your computer. Bite your tongue and go write. This is what we need when we are about to explode. Then you can vent without all the drama! I also keep hearing a cute song in my head by Carrie Newcomer, "Don't Push Send!" This stops me from hurting feelings and being rude.

Practicing doing just the opposite of what we really want to do can help us to change our operating system. This takes time and a lot of FLY Washing. We can do it. We have the ability to sidetrack ourselves just long enough to stop our quirky operating system from making our lives more chaotic.

Are you ready to download your new operating system? Finally Loving Yourself comes in babysteps that can give you the results you really want!
