REASSESSMENT

Huntington County Assessor, Terri Boone, is reminding residents that the State's Cyclical Reassessment will begin the process after July 1, 2014. The information gathered during the cyclical reassessment will be applicable for taxes due and payable in 2016, 2017, 2018 and 2019. The county is required to complete 25 percent of the parcels within each property class every year with all parcels completed March 1, 2018.

During the cyclical reassessment county assessors physically inspect each property to ensure that records are correct. Assessors will look at various property features, such as buildings, garages, pools, etc. to verify data. We will also be taking photographs of all dwellings, front and rear, and possibly out buildings. Huntington County has hired a contractor, Accurate Assessments, to complete the reassessment. The reassessment company will be visibly identified, by markings on vehicles and badges. If the contractor misses the home owner, a yellow door hanger will be left. We are urging all property owners to respond to the Assessor's Office to ensure correct data collection. Accurate Assessments will begin visiting properties throughout Huntington County this summer. Specific questions about how the County will be conducting the reassessment should be directed to the County Assessor's Office at 358-4800. The office is open Monday thru Friday 8:00 to 4:30. Additional information is available on the Indiana Department of Local Government Finance's website at http://www.in.gov/ dlgf/8713.htm.

CONSUMERS BEWARE: 5 TIPS TO KEEP YOU SCAM-FREE

For the majority of Americans who plan to take a vacation, attend a concert, or work on their home or garden this summer, this season comes with its own unique consumer challenges. Here are the top five scams and frauds to be alert for this time of year:

- 1. Don't buy gas additives that claim to make fuel last longer. Even though gas prices go up in the summer, the Environmental Protection Agency has not found any product that significantly improves gas mileage, and some could damage a car's engine or increase exhaust emissions.
- 2. Unlicensed home repair or landscaping contractors may come to your door to offer services. Always research contractors, pay for services upon completion—not ahead of time— and consider using a signed contract outlining the work to be done and the exact price.
- 3. Interested in a summer concert or festival? If you buy tickets from a major vendor, remember surcharges and additional fees may be tacked onto the listed price. Some venues require the same credit card used to purchase tickets be presented when the tickets are picked up, so if you're buying tickets for someone as a gift, they may have difficulty getting them at will-call.
- 4. When renting a beach or lake house for vacation, make sure the property actually exists. Do your homework before paying — check out the owner or rental company, consult maps and read the lease carefully. Pay with an online payment service or a credit card so you can dispute the charges if something goes wrong.
- 5. When flying, make sure you're aware of the airline's baggage charges and their policy when it comes to bumping passengers. A lot of airlines "bump" depending on how late you checked in, so check in ASAP!

For more advice on protecting your money, order the Consumer Action Handbook, and follow USA.gov on Facebook and Twitter. If you have your own consumer questions, ask us using the hashtag #AskMarietta, and we'll answer them live during a Google hangout on Tuesday, June 24 at 3 p.m. ET.

Please don't take your organs to heaven ... Heaven knows we need 'em here!!

Spring Luncheon

Thirty nine members and guests attended the Chautauqua Spring luncheon June 6, 2014, in the Calico Room at Heritage Pointe. The delicious meal was catered by Kim's Katering of Warren, IN.

A short business meeting was conducted by President Karen Hunnicutt. Officers for the coming year are President, Betty Yoder; Vice President, Peggy Schweikhardt; Secretary, Nancy Bonham; Treasurer, LuEllyn Pond. Card Chairman is Linda Howell.

A new experience in summertime reading is being brought for your enjoyment by Sarah E. Ladd, grandaughter of Colleen Oden and daughter of Ann Gibbony Wall. Sarah resides in Indianapolis IN.

Sarah has always been fascinated by English literature of the historical English Regency period, and now has authored 2 books of Christian, Historical background. A third book is to be published in October, 2014, and a future series of 4 books has also been contracted to be written.

Sarah is a delightful young lady who took us through procedures to become a published author----from conceiving the ideas, to hiring an agent, to learning revisions, rewriting, the ways of the publishing world, to the finished product—then book tours for marketing. It is a fascinating journey, and she explained it with enthusiasm and compassion.

The Regency Period in England was basically in the 1800's, ending about 1890. It included the earlier wars, the Industrial Revolution, its effect on the lower classes and how they lived and what they were doing. The education system was pretty exclusive and for the wealthy, and so schools were set up and run by the Quakers often for the children of the lower classes.

These were just a few of the themes Sarah used in her first book, "The Headmistress of Rosemere", published by Thomas Nelson Publishing, in 2013, a historical romance set in the lush English countryside.

Sarah's second book was "The Heiress of Winterwood", also published by Thomas Nelson Publishing. This adventure encourages love, trust, and faith in the Lord, praying continually in times of strife.

Sarah's next book, "A Lady at Willowgrove Hall" is due out in October, 2014.

These stories are informative, delightful, and engaging to read. Quoting Laurie Eakes--"will warm your heart even on the coldest day."

HOME OWNERSHIP MONTH

Owning your own home is part of the American dream. For 65 years, USDA has helped millions of rural residents achieve the dream of homeownership through our affordable home loan programs. This year, USDA Rural Development has helped nearly 3.4 million rural families and individuals become homebuyers through 65 years of delivering housing assistance.

Affordable home financing creates ladders of opportunity to help families grow and thrive. Every year, USDA Rural Development's direct and guaranteed home loans help tens of thousands of rural residents become homeowners. Here in Indiana, since the start of the Obama Administration, USDA Rural Development has made or guaranteed over 27,000 loans for more than $2.5 billion for rural Hoosier residents.

For example, after a divorce that damaged her credit score, Camilla Long was determined to work her way back and own her own home again. Camilla's determination drove her to rebuild her credit and with the help of USDA Rural Development, accomplish her dream.

We also have a home repair loan program, and grants for very-low-income seniors, to help homeowners protect and preserve their most precious asset.

In 2013 alone, Rural Development helped more than 170,000 rural residents become homeowners through direct loans, guaranteed loans, grants and technical assistance to provide them with affordable, safe homes. In both people and dollars, 2013 was the most successful year on record in the history of USDA's single-family housing programs.

Homeownership is a conduit to neighborhood, family and community, and the positive impact of more than 3 million rural American homeowners across the U.S. is difficult to overstate. The benefits extend beyond the homeowners themselves. Homeownership creates economic opportunities for home builders, for providers of durable goods such as lumber or appliances, and for Realtors. Local governments benefit from increased revenue through property taxes. Simply put, the millions of rural homebuyers assisted through USDA are strengthening the rural economy and helping small-town, rural America remain vital and vibrant.

At its core, homeownership is about families, preserving rural values and the rural way of life. Research shows that families experience greater educational achievement, improved health and reduced crime in areas with higher homeownership rates.

President Obama has said the true engine of America's economic growth is a rising and thriving middle class. For most Americans, a home is the largest single investment they will make — and the largest asset they will hold — in their lifetime. A home is a monumental waypoint on these families' journey toward a brighter financial future.

Homeownership helps build equity, assets, and long-term financial security — the foundation for upward mobility.

Although rural America is changing due to the rise of new technologies like the Internet and the advent of globalism, one thing still holds true: homeownership remains one of the most important factors that help rural residents thrive and prosper economically.

During National Homeownership Month, please join us as we celebrate these rural families who, with USDA's help, are investing in their future through a home of their own.

PROTECT AGAINST TICKS

INDIANAPOLIS—As Hoosiers continue to take advantage of the warm weather by spending more time outdoors, State Health officials urge Hoosiers to be aware and protect themselves from ticks.

Ticks are small, insect-like creatures that are often found in naturally vegetated areas or woodlands throughout Indiana. Ticks can transmit illnesses, such as Lyme disease and Rocky Mountain spotted fever. Last year, Indiana confirmed 101 cases of Lyme disease, two cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever and 22 cases of Ehrlichiosis.

"When the weather stays warm, as it is in the summer, ticks are more active," said State Health Commissioner William VanNess, M.D. "It's important to know that ticks are carriers of a number of diseases and that all ticks should be considered infectious and capable of transmitting diseases.'

When entering a grassy or wooded area where ticks are often present, the best way to prevent tick-transmitted diseases is to wear a long-sleeved shirt and light-colored pants, with the shirt tucked in at the waist and the pants tucked into socks. The use of repellents provides even more protection.

Insect repellents containing DEET or picaridin can be sprayed on both skin and clothing to renel ticks and other insects. People who expect to be exposed to ticks for extended periods of time should use products containing permethrin on their clothing, but not on bare skin. Permethrin is an insecticide that kills ticks and other insects on

After leaving a grassy or wooded area, people should check for ticks on clothing and skin. Ticks need to be attached for several hours to a couple of days before they can infect an individual.

"Ticks can be safely removed even if they are attached to your skin." said Dr. VanNess. "Ticks can be removed with either tweezers or forceps by grasping the tick as close to the skin as possible and then pull upward with steady and even pressure without squeezing the tick. It's not a good idea to remove ticks with fingers, but if tweezers or forceps are not available, you can use tissue paper or a paper towel to prevent the passing of any possible infection."

If a person does become ill after finding an attached tick, they should see a medical provider immediately. Tick-borne diseases can all be successfully treated with antibiotics and prompt diagnosis can help prevent complications.

Common tick-related illnesses include Lyme disease, Rocky Mountain spotted fever and Ehrlichiosis. Lyme disease is often associated with a persistent, slowly expanding blotchy red rash which is usually fainter at the center than at the edges. Other signs and symptoms include joint pain, especially in the knees or weakness of the facial muscles. The symptoms of Rocky Mountain spotted fever and Ehrlichiosis are similar. They include a moderate-to-high fever, coupled with fatigue, muscle aches and pains, severe headaches and chills. A rash may also develop shortly after disease onset, first appearing on the arms, legs, palms of the hand and soles of the feet before spreading to other parts of the body. The rash is not present in all

WATER, REST, AND SHADE ARE KEY TO BEAT THE HEAT

After a harsh winter in Indiana, many Hoosiers are embracing the warmth this summer. Emergency medical services professionals remind citizens to be cautious when it comes to the hrutal heat sometimes experienced in Indiana.

The Indiana Department of Homeland Security certifies all EMS professionals in the state, including paramedics, emergency medical technicians, emergency medical responders, and emergency medical providers.

When meteorologists use terms like "extreme heat" or "excessive heat," they mean more than just discomfort from hot weather. These terms indicate a level of high temperature and high humidity, a potentially dangerous combination.

Heat illnesses and deaths are preventable. There are three things Hoosiers need to help protect them from extreme heat: water, rest, and shade.

Water: Drink plenty of water, even if you're not thirsty. Avoid carbonated or alcoholic bever-

- Rest: Take frequent breaks during outdoor activities, and try to avoid activities during the hottest part of the day.
- · Shade: Stay indoors to try and limit exposure to the sun. Check on family, friends, and neighbors who do not have air conditioning and who spend much of their time alone.

Remember that some people are at greater risk than others, especially the elderly, very young children, and those with respiratory conditions.
