Thought for the Week: But all endings are also beginnings. We just don't know it at the time. Mitch Albom

STATE CAPITAL TRIP

We were greeted by Rep. Phyllis Pond, who had asked Pastor and Chaplain Gerald Moreland to offer the opening prayer for the General Assembly for that day. We were given a tour of the State Capital and enjoyed visits from our Representatives and Senators listed above. We ate at the government cafeteria with Rep. Pond and then moved our way to get our picture taken in the Representatives chambers before being seated in the "Galley".

We had hoped to get to see our representatives and senators in action, but there were enough members of the assembly "in ILLINOIS" (OUT OF TOWN!) to keep us from having a session for the day. There were many demonstrators outside the chambers shouting their pleas for their causes. Pastor Gerald Moreland was permitted to have the opening prayer and then as the roll was called a motion was made to adjourn because there weren't enough present to have a quorum. We were disappointed that the "pages" and their parents, as well as the interns present were not able to hear what our government is all about either.

We do need to pray for our elected officials that they will be able to work together to get the business of government done in an orderly and responsible way. We did enjoy the trip, but hope that next year we will be able to see them in actual action, serving the people of Indiana.

Also, on display at East of Chicago that night will be the students quilt, which is being given away through a raffle! The designed the squares and they did a fantastic job. Raffle tickets will be available that night. We can't wait to see you on Tuesday, April 26th from 5-8pm!

CANCER SVCS AT HUGGY

BEAR

The Huggy Bear downtown Warren is participating in a Fund Raiser for Cancer Services. Do you know anyone who has experienced the dreaded disease of Cancer? We all have someone close, a relative or even yourself who has heard that terrifying word-Cancer. We are a small group of caring individuals who try to provide some financial assistance for those going through this journey.

If you are a resident of Huntington County (for at least a year) and are currently receiving treatment or taking medication for Cancer, you may qualify for our assistance. We can offer help with expenses that Medicare and your health insurance do not cover, such as mileage reimbursement and some prescription costs. Our non-profit organization can help each client with up to $1,500 during a 12 month period of time. We receive our funding from various sources including the United Way, grants from various organizations such as hospitals, donations from service organizations, memorial gifts, charitable donations from individuals and endowments. As the economy slows and gas prices rise, more help is needed.

As you shop through the month of April at Huggy Bear, donate just $1 (or more) and all proceeds will go to help those in need. We thank you and are proud to serve those victims of Cancer.

KBC LUNCHEON

The Knight-Bergman Center Board of Directors is sponsoring a fund raising luncheon on May 1st, 11am to 1pm. The menu will feature baked steak or chicken, green beans, salads and desserts. Charge for adults will be $8.00, children ages 5 to 12 $5.00, children under 5 will be free.

The proceeds from this luncheon will be used with matching funds received from the Huntington County Foundation. A grant of $3,000 received from the Foundation is greatly appreciated by the Knight-Bergman Center Board. This grant was written for the purpose of starting to bring all egress up to code. New panic bars and closures will be installed on the most used doors for the first phase.

The board is still looking for monies to update the heating system into a more efficient energy use system, monies to change the old locker rooms into more handicap accessible restrooms, and money to upgrade the entire electrical system in the Center.

THE UPTOWN GARDENER by Ruth Herring

Weather has been cold but the beautiful spring flowers have not failed us. So good to see them in profusion.

The new grass planted last fall is really growing, need to get the mower running or else hire a bailer to come in. I have been doing a lot of day dreaming of things I would like to get accomplished this year. Seem the list gets longer rather than shorter.

Plants I have started in my greenhouse are doing well and anxious to get them outside, but it will need to be much warmer. Garden this year will be scaled back big time as the family seems to think I am getting to old to garden. We will see who wins. Our fruit trees are about to bloom and hope they can hold off for a while so the frost and cold temp won't get them.

Being this week of Easter, made me think of the only basket I can remember ever getting. I was probably four or five years old, when I woke on Easter morning beside my bed was this tiny basket maybe four inches square with one colored egg and a tiny metal car. For some reason I liked those tiny car that was smaller than the now match box cars. That basket to me was a real treat and it didn't even have a chocolate bunny in it, but it was special enough so that I firmly believed in the Easter Bunny.

Sunday we had our family gathering at Treva's (had a great meal) and I seen what my great grand daughter was getting. There was enough for her to have lasted me a life time. Believe me Kylvinn is getting some great stuff. Today for me Easter is the real reason for celebration, but if I can snatch a bite of someone's chocolate bunny that will make it all the more special.

Gayle brought to the dinner a bean salad that was quite good and will share it.

Crunchy Bean Salad

2 ribs celery, 1 yellow pepper, 1 medium unpeeled apple, 1 small onion all diced fine. 1 can black beans, 1 can kidney beans drained and rinsed. Make a dressing of 3 tablespoon vinegar, 2 tablespoon olive oil, little salt and pepper. Mix together celery, apple, yellow pepper, beans and onion. Mix the oil and vinegar, salt and pepper add to the beans mixing well to coat. If desired add about half cup chopped cilantro as a garnish.

Wayne also read on the internet something I had never heard of to treat a mild burn, keep a small amount of all purpose flour in the refrigerator and apply this to the burn. Do not use this for a severe burn that will blister or become open flesh. We haven't had a need to try it but perhaps it might work.

Have a great and Blessed Easter.

AREA NEWS

Keeping this great asset of the Warren area as a viable and functional community center is an ongoing process. There are many items in the Center that need consideration and attention – some very large and many, many smaller items. This Foundation grant will help in the beginning phase of one of the many areas of need.

Please support the KBC luncheon on May 1st.

DOG WALKING

Spring has finally arrived. The birds are singing while the new spring flowers are blooming in the sunshine. The temperature is in the 70% range and your dog is barking to go outside. She turns and looks directly at you with a wagging of her tail. She then prances on all four paws you reach for her leash. Does this paragraph sounds familiar to most dog owners? Let me ask you this question then, "Does your dog's dog collar carry the necessary attachments to go on this little walk?"

You see in Huntington County, according to the Huntington Humane Shelter, all dog walkers are supposed to have a rabies veterinarian tag and some form of ID on their dog's collar. I would add that they should be kept on a leash at all times too. I know this may sound far-fetched, but they have some really good reasons for all of this. For instance: Your dog would have a better chance of being found if lost. Then too, if you dog has bitten another dog or even a child, she would have a better chance of survival than a dog without a rabies tag.

So to all dog owners of Huntington County, have a nice day and happy trails.

This message brought to you by B Sure Pet Sitter for Warren, Rebecca J Nevil.

About Civil War time, the north side of Third Street was part of the business district [at that time there was a big ravine that went through where Wayne Street is.] At one time, there was a general store at the corner, where the library now stands, who carried a large stock of goods. As the story goes he ordered a barrel of vinegar and in shipping a mistake was made. What the Warren merchant got was a barrel full of whiskey, which at that time was sold for small change.

He stored it in his backroom waiting to ship it back. A few weeks went by. When it came time to load it and ship it back, the barrel seemed to be nailed to the floor. A couple of men took hold and pushed, suddenly tipping the barrel over on its side and the men tumbled to the floor. That barrel was empty. They found that someone had crawled under the building, which stood two or three feet off the ground, and had bored a hole, through the floor, into the barrel, to drain out the liquor. Then he had driven a wooden plug through the floor, into the barrel, and it was the plug that was holding it stationary.

THE TRIP

by V Neil Wyrick
Prejudice has been around for a long time because it has a long shelf life. With this in mind I wrote the following.

He reached down and picked up the strange looking mechanism that kept trying to roll away from his grasp. It was some kind of flying machine. It was still warm from having entered their 237 degree atmosphere. The three suns in the sky seemed always to be doing battle with each other.

"What is it?" his companion asked with the trace of what might have been called a smile of anticipation.

"It is from earth. It is not the first. They both knew lots about earth. All those messages coming more and more and three of their kind had visited, but never again. "

Both of them raised their eyebrow.

"Have you ever been to Earth?"

The dust was dry and of the same muted scarlet color. He paused before replying, "Yes, I was one of 'THE THREE' It was most depressing."

"Really? They couldn't see you, of course."

"Of course not. I wore my invisibility shield."

"They are obviously of an inferior race."

They expressed their agreement in the way such agreements had been expressed for centuries.

It was almost a litany as together they repeated together, "The color of their skin is very pale, anemic to the eye. Others of them are quite lack without luster. Some even have a tinge of yellow. Some black. All kind of different shades. They can't seem to agree on a common color."

A younger member of the community had just arrived.

It spoke "Heavens! No green skin? Then of course they must be inferior." And their customs?"

"Barbaric!"

"How so?"

"They talk."

"Talk? How uncouth! I thought all advanced races communicated by thought waves in this day and age." Their antennae glowed bright.

"These do not, and such dialects and myriad of languages! They transmit hardly any distance at all and one nation cannot understand the other."

"Very archaic; no wonder they still have wars."

"And they're dirty."

"Dirt? Oh yes, I remember that from our own ancient history. You mean they still have it?"

"It makes them smell." Another younger had arrived. He wrinkled his glock.

"Well, naturally, from everything you've told me, it couldn't be any other way. By the way, are there any exceptions in these...now what would you call them?"

"Exceptions? Oh, yes...a few; but then you know how it is, once an earthing always an earthing"

"We might be able to use the exceptions."

"Tell them they're equal but treat them as if they aren't?"

"OF COURSE!"

"We could give them equal opportunities and they might produce."

"Possibly."

"Not too many. We wouldn't want them to get delusions of grandeur." They had not moved for several time sequences. It was always like this at a time like this.

"It is too bad, isn't it?"

"Tragic!"

"But I guess that's the way God wanted it."

"Yes, I certainly am glad He made me like I am."

"You have the most beautiful tentacles I've ever seen."

"Well now, your claws are nothing to be ashamed of."

"Come on, let's slither over to the cone. I'll buy you an atomic soda."

"Thanks, don't mind if I do. This discussion has upset me!"

HIDING BEHIND DOORS

by The FlyLady Marla Cilley
We have lived our lives not being able to open the door; you know that "can't have anyone over syndrome" that has paralyzed us. We have other doors that we hide behind. It is perfectionism that keeps us huddled behind them in fear and shame. Remember that the opposite of love is fear.

I want for you what I have peace, and this peace came from loving me just the way I am. This means with all my warts and blemishes. Now this process of loving myself didn't happen over night. Just like your home is not going to get clean in a day. All my life I have been told (by my family) you have such a pretty face, if only you would lose some weight. Those if onlys and buts tend to negate the good that was said: Why couldn't they just stop with the pretty face. Then at the same time, I was programmed with, "Pretty is as pretty does": On one hand it is how I act and then almost in the same breath it was putting me down because of my physical appearance.

Learning to love myself was the hardest thing I ever did. In my perfectionism, I was self-conscious of the way I looked. So I hid behind baggy clothes (another door) and sweat shirts, and long coats. As a result, I had a new mantra in my life. When I lose weight, I will.....! When I lose the baby fat, when I go on a diet, if only I could fit into that dress, this year I am going to lose weight. Let me tell you, I became my own worst nightmare. The negative mindset was causing me to gain even more weight. Not only had I closed the door on my future by hiding behind my insecurities but I had throw away the key thinking I was not worthy to have or do anything because I was embarrassment to my family.

I started hiding behind these doors in high school. Guess what friends, I was not heavy in high school. I just was not small like my sisters. My body type was different. My grandmother is 5' 2" and so are two of my sisters.

At the time I didn't know I was different. I just believed all the lies that were lovingly shoved down my throat. As a result, I started to overeat: Stuffing my feelings of inadequacy by feeding my face. I was finding comfort any way I could. Then I would feel so bad. It was a vicious cycle. Then new years would roll around and I would find myself making that perpetual resolution to get THIN again!

Twenty years ago, I started my journey of peace! The first step was getting the audible negative voices away from me. I divorced him. I knew that I was going to die if I allowed myself to be brainwashed by him one more day. I also distanced myself from the rest of the family. That way I only heard the negative voices on the phone when I called my granny or my mother. "Honey are you still big?" was a common question.

The change for me was immediate. No I didn't start to lose weight. I quit beating myself up with diets and torture. The negative self-talk was going away and I was replacing it with loving gestures; bubble baths, meditation, walks in the woods, fishing, and kind words in my head. When ever I would mentally hear those ugly words, I would replace them. The hardest part to all of this is recognizing that you say them to yourself in the first place. Once that light bulb goes off, you begin to heal.

Every thing that has happened to me in my life has made me the person that I am. I am thankful for every single bad thing that has ever happened to me. Those things make me stronger and more able to share with you. In my imperfection I can help you become who you are supposed to be. It was only after I personally started to Finally Love Myself (FLY) that I found my voice.

Don't ever forget that the message is not about me, it is about you and helping you to FLY! If I can teach you this one lesson, your home will come together. It is an all inclusive process. The baby steps, shining your sink, getting dressed to shoes, fixing your hair and face, building your routines are all part of FLYing, as well as getting rid of the clutter from your life. Don't get caught in the revolving door of I'll do this when. We all have to start someplace. Let go of the negative attitudes and self-defeating behavior and be nice to you for a change.
