RETREAT PLANNED

Twenty-five years ago, the pastor's wife, Paula Gast, guided and encouraged the development of the S.O.S. Women's Support Group. This group has not only been a comforting support to the women within, but has become a vital part of the church, community and world-wide mission field.

Paula Gast has shared her faith and love for the Lord through the years. Her gift of listening to people and comforting them through prayer and scripture is such an awesome gift from God. She has returned to Warren to share messages at reunions, retreats, and this will be the second time she has come to speak at a "Women's Day Away". Her messages both uplift and enlighten.

We hope that you will come and enjoy being in the presence of the Lord on Saturday, May 16 at Solid Rock United Methodist Church, 227 N Main Street, Warren from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

JEALOUSY, HOW TO HANDLE IT

RATHER THAN LETTING IT HANDLE YOU

by V Neil Wyrick

There is a special integrity to being able to praise someone who is better rather than curse them for it. A case in point is a true story about Sir Walter Scott. For many years he was the leading literary figure in the British Isles. It was agreed that no one could write as well as he...that is until a review came out that named Lord Byron as the leading writer in the land. Eventually, it was discovered that the writer of the review was Sir Walter Scott himself.

Jealousy and envy walk hand in hand end up giving each other emotional and mental poison ivy.

How to handle it? Well, first look at the things about you that are really good and emphasize them to yourself. A great deal of jealousy grows out of a lack of self confidence. In short, even in a joking way stop making negative comments about yourself. Eventually you really will believe them.

Don't say you're not jealous when you are. You can't solve a problem you refuse to admit exist.

Then, check out your health and health practices. If you are eating too many sweets (the ups and then downs of this practice) or getting too little sleep you are automatically setting yourself up for depressing thoughts...and jealousy loves to feast on depressing thoughts.

Write down what is making you jealous and what you can or cannot do about it. Write down your rational and irrational thoughts so that viewed side by side you can then pick out what just doesn't make sense in the light of day.

Is your mate or fiancée a flirt? Why? Well, they just may well be a person of great self-confidence and honestly not mean anything by it. Give them some slack. Remember, it was this self confidence that probably drew you to them in the first place.

The husband, wife, boy friend or girl friend who is attracted to another person of the other sex because of their looks or intellect doesn't mean they want to carry this attraction any further than just liking what they see or hear. Do you want them to turn into the kind of person that is attracted to nothing or no one.

In closing lets take a look at jealousy and what it is and what causes it...whether it concerns sexual relationships, or jobs or athletic endeavors or.....

The basic cause for all jealousy is selfishness. Jealousy simply says, "You are doing or being what is making me unhappy. Stop it and start doing or being what will make ME happy." This creates what is called a conflict of interest.

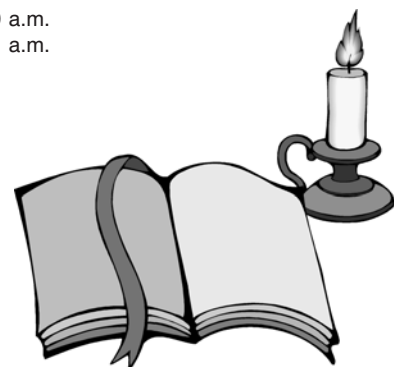

Jealousy is a weed in the garden of life. There is no beauty to it. Neither party or parties can enjoy the good that is around it when this weed is taking over. It is bad enough to look down and see it has

WIZARD OF OZ

There's a BIG change coming to the Pulse Opera House. Because of the number of young people who have expressed an interest in being in a show this summer, the Pulse will present the musical The Wizard of Oz in place of Yankee Ingenuity. Actors, singers and dancers of all ages are needed to stage this American masterpiece.

The show is based on the famous MGM movie and contains the beloved characters and songs we all grew up with. The Wizard of Oz is the only truly American fairy tale. In keeping with the Pulse's all-American theme this year, it is based on values we all share, such as Heart, Brains, Courage and most of all—Home.

Auditions will be held on Sunday, May 17 beginning at 2:00 p.m. with auditions for Dorothy, the Tin Man, the Lion, the Scarecrow, the Wizard, the Wicked witch and Glinda. Munchkin (children age 5 and up) auditions will be at 4:00 p.m. and chorus auditions will be at 5:00 p.m. Everyone auditioning should come prepared to sing. Those who are auditioning for main roles should prepare a song from the show. Children should be prepared to sing as well.

The show dates are July 10, 11, 16, 17, 18, 23, 24 & 25. Rehearsals are held Monday-Friday evenings, although not everyone is called every evening. We are also looking for adults to assist with costumes, set building and to help oversee the children in the show.

GO GREEN WITH BLOOD

If you're looking to be eco-friendly, your first step could simply be rolling up your sleeve to donate blood.

"Blood is truly a renewable resource that can help others in need," said Sharyn Whitman, CEO for the Indiana-Ohio Blood Services Region of the American Red Cross. "If you're eligible to donate, you can give blood every 56 days, up to six times a year. Your one blood donation can help save up to three lives. That's a lot of life to give."

This spring, the American Red Cross is asking you to help "recycle life" by giving blood. The Red Cross is also providing tips for saving energy, water and other natural resources as our nation continues to embrace "going green" through eco-friendly practices.

In the Indiana-Ohio Blood Services Region, the American Red Cross needs to collect about 500 blood donations a day to meet the ongoing and emergency medical needs of patients in more than 60 hospitals.

"Blood is renewable. Your body replaces the lost fluid within 24 hours after donation and continuously replaces red blood cells," said Whitman. "Please recycle your blood for someone who needs it today. We simply need more people to give once, twice or even three times a year."

NIGHT OF PHYSICS

Dr. Gerald D. Smith, Huntington University professor of physics and chemistry, will present a "Night of Physics: Favorite Demonstrations – The Grand Finale" on April 30 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in Hiner Hall of the Science Hall at Huntington University.

Demonstrations include the Rocket Cart, Bed of Nails, Tablecloth Pull and many more.

The presentation is free and open to the public.

Dr. Gerald D. Smith joined the Huntington University faculty in 1967. His interests in nuclear chemistry and physics took him to the University of Washington for graduate study following completion of his bachelor's degree in chemistry from Huntington, and subsequently to Purdue University where he completed a Ph.D. in radiation physics.

He was active for many years in the Fort Wayne area section of the American Chemical Society for which he edited the section's newsletter and served as section chair. He was recognized as Chemist of the Year in 1982.

Smith served as vice president and dean of Huntington College for 16 years, intermittently teaching physical chemistry and liberal arts physics before returning to full-time teaching in 1998. His evolving interests in cosmology and astrophysics prompted him to erect a radiotelescope on the new Science Hall where he studies galactic rotation. He is engaged in active research on muon decay that retains his interests in nuclear physics.

Smith is a member of numerous professional organizations including the American Physical Society, American Chemical Society, American Association of Physics Teachers and the American Association of University Professors.

FREE ADMISSION

Get your carload of family and friends in the gate of any Indiana state park, lake or state forest without spending a dime on Sunday, May 3, as part of the annual Welcome Back Weekend, the traditional lid-lifter of the spring recreation season.

"This is a great time to visit a DNR property," said Ginger Murphy, assistant director for stewardship in the DNR Division of State Parks and Reservoirs. "It's a chance for people who've never visited or haven't recently stopped by to discover a state treasure and save a few dollars at the same time."

Even veteran park-goers will notice something new or updated at most properties. Features include the Abraham Lincoln

Bicentennial Plaza opening in June at Lincoln State Park, new electric campsites at Ouabache, comfort stations under construction at Clifty Falls and Lincoln, new Gus Grissom Memorial exhibits at Spring Mill State Park, improved mountain bike trails at several properties and more than 300 new interpretive wayside signs all around the state to help you enjoy and better understand what you see. For a complete list of improvements and additions, see http://www.in.gov/dnr/parklake/files/sp-Property-Updates2009_Successes2008.pdf.

"We hope people will like what they see and buy a $36 Annual Entrance Pass ($18 for ages 65 and older), which will get their carload through any entrance gate for the rest of 2009."

Normal weekend gate fees for most properties are $5 per day for an in-state vehicle and $7 per day for an out-of-state vehicle. During the week, most fees are $4 for in-state and $7 for out-of-state. All other fees will be in effect. The only thing waived is the daily entrance normally charged for any car, truck, bicycle or pedestrian. The entrance fee for Historic Prophetstown at Prophetstown State Park remains in effect.

May 3 is the second consecutive day you can enter a state park or lake without paying a gate fee,

IF MOMMA AIN'T HAPPY!

by The FlyLady, Marla Cilley
This morning as I lay in bed after I woke up, I found myself making a list of why our home feels beautiful. I asked myself this question. What are the things that make our home feel beautiful?

The first thing that came to mind was that I always know where my keys are! That may seem strange to some people but searching for your keys to leave is very stressful when you are in a hurry. I hate walking down to my car and having to come back to the house to get the keys. My keys now have a home and they are not hiding in the refrigerator or a drawer. The last time I lost my keys they were in my Ziplock bag drawer because I needed to take one with me. At least they are much easier to find because they are on a lanyard. I keep my keys on a hook with my sunglasses and my little purse. Everything has a place and everything in its place. My keys are not lost in the bottom of a huge purse and even when I use my large bag for travel, the lanyard helps me to put my hand on them without having to get out a flashlight.

The next feature that makes my heart sing is the fact that I can open my door to anyone at any time. Our home is not an embarrassment. There may be a few puppy toe prints on the floor and nose prints on the doors but with only a few minutes they are gone. Our home blesses us because I have used my routines to keep it company ready; the best part is that we are the company. We love being home and we also love entertaining on the FLY. It doesn't have to be perfect and I didn't have to spend days getting ready to have friends over. The stress is gone!

Another blessing that adds to the feeling of our beautiful home is the simple fact that my kitchen sink is shining. That shining sink gave me hope when I first decided to get organized. I never dreamed that it would free me from the guilt of a messy kitchen and a chaotic home. That shiny sink started my day with a smile. I was not behind! I no longer dreaded cooking because the dishes were put away and the counters were clear. It is the simple things that make you smile especially when you have lived with mystery water and dirty dishes your whole life.

As I look back at what has contributed to that beautiful feeling of clean in our home it has more to do with me not being all stressed out! When I can accomplish my routines and feel ahead then the stress and anxiety leave my body. I feel that I have more time in my day to do what God put me on the Earth to do! After all if Momma ain't happy then ain't nobody happy! Those words, "I don't have time" never cross my lips! Now I can enjoy our home and can bless others because I do have time! A few simple habits can make all the difference in the way your home feels.

GET BIO-BLITZED

A "bio-blitz", an attempt to secure a detailed inventory of nature, will be jam-packed into one weekend at Brown County State Park, June 5-7.

The goal is to take stock of every living plant and animal species in the nearly 16,000 acres of Brown County State Park; you can help. A traditional bioblitz lasts 24 hours, but because the park is so large, the bioblitz is scheduled to run all weekend. Brown County State Park needs volunteers to assist scientists and naturalists who will lead this inaugural event. Many volunteering will see areas of the park that are normally off limits to the public. The effort will yield a valuable record of common as well as rare, endangered and exotic (plant) species living in the park; it will help property staff to learn more about what resources are present and aid in better resource management decision-making.

"This will be a fun and important event," said Jim Eagleman, the park's interpretive naturalist. "It will give us a snapshot of the biodiversity of Indiana's largest state park. We encourage anyone who enjoys nature and the outdoors to volunteer; learning from today's scientists about their area of expertise will be a bonus!", he said.

Those visitors concerned about the physical demands of volunteering may wish to attend a talk with a researcher. Public programs presented by the park interpretive staff will highlight species being discovered during the 3-day event; visitors can also learn what environmental demands are facing today's botanists and biologists.

The park's Nature Center will serve as base camp, stocked with coffee, refreshments, field guides, computers, microscopes, and species' tally sheets. All inventoried sites will be recorded with GPS coordinates.

Those interested in participating are asked to register online at www.bcbioblitz.com. Gate fee of $5 per in-state vehicle and $7 per out-of-state vehicle will be charged.

taken root. It is even worse to fertilize it.

Jealousy is not just something found in Hollywood. It is just as often found in pulpits and in pews and behind the desks of important CEO's and other fields of daily endeavor. It is an equal opportunity disease.

Would you rid yourself of a jealousy? Go...seek out the person you are jealous of...and praise them and congratulate them for whatever it is you can honestly say you find attractive or good. Do the opposite of what you feel and you will then begin to feel the positive you have now expressed.

Let me close with my favorite quote on this matter.

"Love looks through a telescope. Envy through a microscope." (Josh Billings)
