KUDOS, KICKS & KARATS

THE UPTOWN GARDENER

by Ruth Herring

Today has been such a dreary day it is hard to think about something interesting. I have been trying to get the farmers market organized for the season, but it has been difficult this year because of some changes in procedures and issues that needs to be cleared up. The vendors are all anxious to get started and hopefully we can have another successful market this year.

The plants in my small greenhouse are coming along nicely and counting on them to be nice and healthy when it comes time to put them in the garden.

My tomato plant that I kept over the winter continues to produce not many at a time but a few to whet my appetite. Only wish they were big enough to slice for on a hamburger. Maybe they might be big enough for a White Castle burger. I managed to get outside to do some cleanup in the flowerbeds the nice days we had. It was a chore with the cast still on but I got quite a bit done Also got fertilizer around the rose bushes and some of the perennials before the rains came.

This time of year was when we always at home got baby chicks, usually 500 at a time and you could bet your life that we would get a storm and the electricity would go out. You just can't let those cute little fuzzy balls get cold; so in the house we would bring them and lucky me I got to sleep with the chickens. My room had a register for the heat to come upstairs so therefore it was warm for them. I said many a prayer that the electricity would come back on and also that they would be quiet all night. I think if we got baby chicks on the hottest day of the year it would somehow turn cold and storm and out went the lights. Once we never got them all out of the shipping cartons and out went the lights there was no storm or reason, just a pretty sunny day, but we found a squirrel dead draped over the transformer. Lucky me that time no bed pals. Those were the days but I sure don't really miss them especially when it came time to sell them dressed. Lot of work.

This weekend I made a cake that I found the recipe for on the internet so I tried it and was quite good. I will share it with you. Many of you probably have a recipe for carrot cake but this one I found to be very moist even without the icing. Called it a "glorious carrot cake"

2 cups sugar, 1 1/4 cup vegetable oil, 4 eggs, 2 cups flour, 2 teaspoon baking powder, 2teaspoon soda, salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg, 3 cups ground carrots, 1/2 cup pecan pieces, 1/2 cup raisins. Sift all dry ingredients, beat eggs and add sugar and oil, gradually add dry ingredients then carrots and pecans and raisins.

The recipe said to place in three 8 inch round cake pans but I put it in a 9x13 plan and was quite full. I bake it 1 hour at 325 degrees. To me the cake is so moist that I'm not sure it would make a good layer cake.

In round pans it would not take as long to bake. Icing is the basic cream cheese icing of 16 oz. cream cheese 1 stick butter 4 teaspoon vanilla 4 cups powdered sugar. This would make quite a bit of icing if you bake the cake in a 9x13 pan. So you might choose to half the recipe.

Enjoy!

DON'T LET YOUR FEAR OF MATH STOP YOU

Is your fear of math the one thing that keeps you from taking the GED test? Many adults in Indiana think their math skills aren't good enough to pass the GED test. You read well, but you are afraid your rusty math skills will keep you from passing the GED. Or maybe you never learned to do anything but add, subtract, multiply and divide whole numbers. If you remember how to do basic math, watching the GED Connection math series from home may be the answer to passing the GED test and earning an Indiana GED High School Diploma. The math portion of GED Connection television series will begin the week of May 4th on local public television stations throughout Indiana.

The series includes 14 half-hour math programs designed for adults and will run through the week of June 15, 2008. Two lessons each week will present dramatized learning situations in which adults are using math in their daily lives. The programs begin with number sense; decimals; fractions; ratio, proportion and percent. Then they teach measurement, formulas, geometry, statistics and probability, and basic algebra.

Adult students tell us they find learning math easier and a lot more fun than they remember from high school. The friendly GED ON TV staff will answer questions on a toll-free helpline throughout the series. A workbook and scientific calculator accompany the lessons and may be purchased for $26. Hoosier adults wanting to brush up on their math skills may enroll between April 10th and May 3rd by calling toll-free 1.877.433.6688.

SOUP-ER STAR POWER

Twenty-eight children and two adults were at the Van Buren Public Library After School Story Time on Friday April 4th 2008.

The children entered into the library and signed in. They received a star to decorate and cut into 4 pieces. This will be their attendance star for the four Fridays we will meet in April. They also received a picture of a basket of potatoes to color.

Karen read the book "Wake Me In Spring" by James Preller. This story is about a friendship between a bear and a mouse. This book can be found in the children's department of the library.

The children were to bring canned food to donate to our local food pantry, Harvest House, here in Van Buren. Harvest House is across the street from D&S Lubratory. This is an on going ministry of our Lord and supported by our local churches and good people who want to serve Harvest House through donations of goods or monetary funds.

The children listened as our volunteer Mrs. Nancy Cook shared some information about our local food pantry. Mrs. Cook not only volunteers at the library but she volunteers at Harvest House. We appreciate her sooo much. She shared that canned goods were something good to donate. Perishable have been donated before but they had to find a home to go to quick.

The children listened as Karen read "Walt Disney's Dumbo" this book has been a favorite for years.

Karen had made homemade Cheeseburger Soup for the children to enjoy for their treat. Crackers were also served. Most even came back for seconds.

Those attending were Rachel Bryant, Elizabeth Bryant, Olivia Bryant and their Grandmother Mrs. Carolyn Bryant. Others were Cathryne Anderson, Porshe Kellems, Bethany Bridenthal, Olivia Peterson, Apollo Peterson, Kaylee Morgan, Faith Wiggin, Emilee Morgan, Micah Metzger, Jadyen Griffith, Jarren Griffith, Emily Webb, Jacob Clupper, Lilly Stiles, Caitlin Casto, Zariah Percy, Zehra Percy, Amanda Keifer, Kayla Handshoe, Savannah Hancock, Laim Hancock and Mother Mrs. Trudy Hancock, Joey Keifer, Rayne Rumble, Caitlin Imhoff, and Nixon Smith.

Others attending the meeting were Sondra Zabel, Rosemary Zeller, Sandy Booher, Sharon Gebhart, Betty Yoder, Susan Ralston, Peggy Clark and Opal Brubaker. The meeting was adjourned until the next meeting, May 6th. Sigma Phi Gamma will be doing the Sunday May 4th luncheon. CAMP LOGAN OPEN HOUSE

Girls and their families can explore Camp Ella J. Logan, 203 EMS Lane D 14, Syracuse, on Sunday, April 20, from 1:00-4:00 p.m. to learn more about summer resident camp opportunities.

Camp Logan, located on Dewart Lake, offers overnight camp sessions for girls entering grades 1-12; girls do not have to be Girl Scouts to attend camp. During the open house, girls can take a tour, tour the facilities and meet the staff. The Summer Camp brochure is also available at www.girlscouts-limberlost.org.

For resident campers, Camp Logan is known for its true back-to-nature philosophy, with platform tents and stone fire rings.

It's the perfect camp experience for the outdoor adventurer!

Camp Logan offers more than 200 acres of woods, meadows, wetlands and an island. Because girls spend their days and nights at Camp Logan, they develop real friendships that will last a lifetime. During the day, girls might be taking a hike, canoeing or kayaking in the lake or perfecting horseback riding skills; no matter what their activities, girls progress at their own pace.

To reach Camp Logan, travel Highway 30 west to Highway 13. Turn north and follow Highway 13 through North Webster; then turn west at the flashing yellow light at County Road 1000 N; Camp Logan will be 3 miles ahead on the left.

An American Camp Association accredited camp, Camp Logan meets or exceeds the more than 300 nationally recognized standards for safety, health, staff training and program quality identified by the American Camp Association (ACA).

For information or a brochure about day camp and resident camp registration opportunities, call the Girl Scouts of Limberlost Council, (260) 422-3417 or 800-283-4812, extension 130, or visit www.girlscouts-limberlost.org.

Girl Scouting builds girls of courage, confidence, and character, who make the world a better place. Today, as when founded in 1912, Girl Scouts helps cultivate values, social conscience and self-esteem in young girls while also teaching them critical life skills that will enable them to succeed as adults. In Girl Scouting—and its special girl-only environment—girls discover the fun, friendship and power of girls together. Girl Scouts of Limberlost Council administers programs in Adams, Allen, DeKalb, Huntington, Steuben and Wells counties in northeast Indiana.

Do Over?

by The FlyLady, Marla Cilley
Did you ever sit and wonder how your life would be if you had only made a different decision? One time I was queuing up an email to go out at a later date. By accident I put yesterday's date in the box. Programmers can be so funny sometimes. A little error message window pops up and says, "I know you had to send this message yesterday, but I just can't do it till my time machine gets back from the shop." Well folks we don't have time machines and if we did would we really want to use them.

Our lives are the decisions we have made. Albeit good or bad; they are the decisions that send us on our journey through life. Reminiscing is not negative but

EGYPTIAN TOUR (PART II)

The six of us, Larry & Rosalie Couch, Claire & Sharon McMillan, and Jim & I all did the optional tour called Spiritual Cairo. This tour was designed to show the spirituality of Egypt. At least 80% of Egyptians are Moslem. Their religious holidays are also national holidays. Everywhere we went we could hear the call to prayer five times a day beamed out on loud speakers from all the mosques. They preach over these speakers on Friday afternoons (Islamic Sabbath). This was a distressing noise to us who were unaccustomed to hearing Arabic. The round-domed mosques with minarets were scattered everywhere.

We also visited the Jewish Temple (Ben Ezer) where Moses as an infant was placed by his mother in the basket. And lastly we visited a Christian Church (St. Sergius) where Joseph, Mary and the infant Christ, rested at the end of their journey into Egypt. After this tour we went to the Turkish Bazaar (the largest traditional shopping bazaar in the world) and tried our hand at Arab bargaining. They loved the Yankee dollar here.

Earlier we had exchanged our U.S. dollars into pounds at the rate of about 1 to 5. They used mostly bills and even had bills that were under a pound called a piaster. So if one pound bill is about twenty cents U.S., the piaster bills were worth almost nothing, but you could use them as tips to go to the bathroom. You had to pay there to use any facility. Trading has been the norm in Egypt for centuries and these modern folks are born and bred traders. They knew all about money.

The next day we flew down to Luxor (about an hour flight) where we embarked on the MS River Anuket Nile Cruise Ship. We got settled in our rooms which were pretty large with big windows. We stayed docked in Luxor (known as Thebes in olden times) along the east side because it is where the life-giving sun rises. The other side of the river (west or City of the Dead) is where the tombs of the pharaohs and their funerary temples are located. The Nile is much like the Mississippi River in size so you could see across it.

While docked we visited the famous Temple of Luxor built by two famous pharaohs (Amenhotep III and Ramses II) and dedicated to Amun-Ra a god whom they still celebrated annually during the festival of Opet. Next we crossed the river and visited the Valley of the Kings. This area has been a focus of concentrated archaeological exploration since the end of the eighteenth century and researchers were there this day. It is absolutely a remarkable site. Most of the pharaohs of Egypt are buried here.

The tombs of the valley are officially given a KV number, standing for "Kings Valley." You have probably seen TV programs about this site. This is where Howard Carter discovered the treasures of Tutankhamen and was struck "dumb with amazement" of all the wonderful things. This was one tomb that had not been robbed centuries before and Carter found truckload after truckload of gold, treasures, etc. that people believed you'd need in the afterlife. The mummy of King Tut was still in his sarcophagus.

Next we visited the Valley of the Queens just south of the Kings where the queens and children were buried in the same kinds of limestone tombs. Not only did they mummify remains of living people who died, there was also a mummified fetus.

On our way back to the ship (which was more the size of a big boat) we stopped at the Colossi of Memnon. These were two massive stone statues depicting the pharaoh Amenhotep III. The statues were made from blocks of quartzite sandstone and appeared to be standing guard at his temple. We were beginning to get the reasoning behind "thou shall have no other gods before me" admonition. There were over 40 gods and goddesses in ancient Egypt.

regret can take years from you. Why do we beat ourselves up over decisions we have made? We don't have to live in regret anymore. We can release the regret by forgiving ourselves of those bad mistakes and accepting them as part of our path to where we are today.

Bad decisions help us to make better choices in the future. There are many reasons we made regrettable decisions in our past. The first one had to do with our impetuous and rebellious teenage years. Those years are no different than the terrible twos. We have to prove ourselves. No one could tell us anything. We didn't listen because we thought we knew it all. Our parents tried their best to keep us from making the same mistakes that they did, but we had to make our own mistakes in order to learn something from them. There is nothing like a dose of reality to send us in a different direction.

We may not have a time machine to change the past but we do have a type of a crystal ball and it is in our heads. The power of that crystal ball comes from all those decisions we have made in the past and what we have learned from the good ones and the bad ones. Those choices become the filters that help us to process the decisions we have to make every day.

We don't get a "do over" in real life! Or do we? We are destined to continue to make the same mistakes if we don't learn from them. One New Year's Day I used my crystal ball filter system to figure out why I had trouble keeping my home clean. When I examined the system that had worked once it was easy to see the mistakes that I had made in using the Sidetracked Home Executive card file; it was a great system. In my impetuous rebellious state of mind, I had to do it my way! Doesn't that sound familiar?

The first thing I figured out was that I had never established a habit. Then I noticed how hard I was on myself by trying to do everything at once in addition to piling on more and more to do! I decided to be nice to myself by only picking one habit at a time to practice. I even gave myself a grace period of ten days; instead of beating myself up when I would miss a day, I would jump back in without having to start back over. We hate that defeated feeling of failure. There were no excuses because I didn't have to be perfect to establish a habit; I had a whole month to do it. The rule was I could not skip two days in a row. Anybody could do it.

That first habit was shining my sink. When that worked I added another habit the next month. Each new habit was setting the foundation for keeping my home clean and shiny as well as getting rid of those awful regrets.

We don't have to be stuck in our own Groundhog Day Movie. We have a choice to use our filter system to help us make different decisions. We have our brains that can think. We have the ability to take advice instead of rebelling against it. We are a crystal ball because the choices we make today set the path for our future.

Are you ready to FLY by letting go of your regrets and forgiving yourself? Our choices have made us who we are today. When we learn from our mistakes we can use them as a filter to keep us from making those same bad choices again.
